CLAIM WOMAN DIED OF SHOT

Chicago, Nov. 25 (AP)—The tragic death of petite Rheta Wynekoop remained much of a mystery today, despite the confession of her mother-in-law, Dr. Alice Wynekoop, that she fired a bullet into the young woman's body as she lay upon an operating table in the physician's basement surgery.

Dissatisfied with Doctor Wynekoop's formal statement that the bullet was not fired until after Rheta had died by accident of chloroform administered while she was receiving medical treatment from the woman physician, the authorities pushed their inquiry.

They were questioning alternately the physician and her 28-year-old son, Earle, husband of Rheta.

"The case has just begun," said John Stegge, supervising captain of police.

Questions Method

Doctor Wynekoop in an informal verbal confession was quoted by the police as saying she fired the bullet into the woman's heart after she had died in order to indicate that she had been slain by a robber, but in her formal statement later, she gave no reason why the pistol was used except to declare that she had wondered "what method would ease the situation best of all."

The coroner's jury held to the belief that Rheta died of "a gunshot wound, hemorrhage and shot"; that the wounds were inflicted by Doctor Wynekoop; recommended that she be held on a charge of murder and that "all who aided and abetted be apprehended."

At the same time Captain Stegge said the police "still had many persons connected with this case under suspicion."

He held to his own belief that it was the pistol bullet and not the chloroform that caused Rheta's death and Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty said he was ready to put the 62-year-old gray-haired mistress of a 16-room home, on trial immediately.

Deliberate Murder

"It is my opinion," he said, "that this was a deliberate murder and I am ready to go to court now as the case stands.

"I can see the following motives: Collection of the insurance money; because Doctor Wynekoop owed a large number of bills and a $3,500 mortgage. Another motive was the marital difficulties of her son.

"I believe she decided to do the slaying after she had that secret conversation with her son when he was in Chicago shortly before his wife's death and without telling his wife of his presence here."

The prosecutor referred to a meeting the police said Doctor Wynekoop had with Earle in his automobile on Chicago's South Side last Sunday night. And he added that he expected to be able to show that Earle "should be charged as an accessory before the fact of murder."

Extradition Of Gettysburg Man Held Until Dec. 1

Harrisburg, Nov. 25 (AP)—A. Lee Edwards, deputy attorney general, held in abeyance until December 1, the application of Governor George White, of Ohio, for the extradition of John E. Slaybaugh, of Gettysburg, at a hearing here. Slaybaugh is wanted in Mansfield, Ohio, for desertion and non-support of a minor son.

Edwards acted on agreement of counsel. If satisfactory arrangements with Ohio officials have not been made when the hearing is reopened, a recommendation will be made to Governor Pinchot.

BEATIFICATION AND MEDAL DAY FETE PLANNED

St. Joseph's College, Emmitsburg, To Hold 3-Day Exercises.

HIGH PRELATES TO PARTICIPATE

His Excellency the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, archbishop of Baltimore, the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore, and the Most Rev. William J. Hafey, bishop of Raleigh, North Carolina, will take part in triduum ceremonies at St. Joseph's college, Emmitsburg, next week, commemorating the anniversary of the manifestation of the Miraculous Medal honoring the new beatified, blessed Catherine Laboure.

All the splendor of liturgical beauty will mark the three-day celebration beginning Sunday morning in a chapel completely transformed for the occasion.

Decorate Chapel

The chapel decorations will be even more beautiful than those of the centenary year of 1930. New lighting effects, diffusing illumination in soft, steady glow, were completed a few weeks ago; in addition, for the triduum, two crystal tiered chandeliers, each containing twelve lights, will accentuate the beauty of the sanctuary which will be further set off by sheaves of illuminated lilies. The chandeliers will be projected from the inner pilasters or right-angled columns extending on either side of the niches containing the statues of St. Joseph and St. Vincent.

A shrine of cloth of silver, containing a first class relic of blessed Catherine, will occupy a place of honor. Symbolizing her sanctity and innocence and recalling an incident in her life when doves formed

Culp-Taylor Nuptials Are Solemnized in York Springs

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized in the York Springs Lutheran church this morning at 10 o'clock, when Miss Margaret Helen Culp, of York Springs, and Ivan Cletus Taylor, of Bendersville, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. L. B. Hafer, of Gettysburg, pastor of the York Springs Lutheran church, and the Rev. Dr. O. D. Coble, pastor of the Bendersville Lutheran church. The ring ceremony of the Lutheran church was used.

Miss Jean Pearson, of York Springs, gave a short organ recital before the nuptials and played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the processional and recessional.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, H. B. Pearson, of York Springs, wore an ivory satin princess gown with boat neckline and short train of egg-shell tulle, which fell to the knees in front. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her going-away costume was a brown ensemble, with accessories to match, with a corsage of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley.

A sister of the bride, Miss Elsie Culp, of Bound Brook, New Jersey, was the maid of honor and wore a gold crepe gown, with brown accessories. Her arm bouquet was of shaded chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom was attended by Harry Lerew, of Bendersville, as best man. Clair Dull and Guy Routsong, also of Bendersville, were the ushers.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Mary Jane inn, near York Springs, to the immediate families and a few friends.

The bride, a daughter of the late Kenton Culp, of Gettysburg, and Mrs. Grace W. Culp, of Bound Brook, New Jersey, has resided with Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Pearson, an uncle and aunt, since infancy. She is a graduate of the York Springs high school and attended Hood college, Frederick.

Mr. Taylor is a graduate of the Biglerville high school and attended Gettysburg college.

The newly-weds will reside with Mr. and Mrs. Pearson until spring.

Pictorial Review Publishes Story By Mrs. E. Lewars

A new story by Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars, under her pen name of Elsie Singmaster, appears in the current issue of "Pictorial Review," a leading monthly. "The Buttressed Wall" is the title of the story and in it Mrs. Lewars shifts the setting to the World War from Civil War scenes, the latter being the usual background for her interesting and popular short stories of a war nature.

In this new story, romance awakens two young people who were victims of the World War. It is intensely human, evolving around a young man who lost his sight in the war and who eventually marries the wife of his chum, who was killed in action at the front.

The story is attractively illustrated by Robert Lawson.

1933 Christmas Card Sentiments Go Modern

Christmas card designers haven't overlooked Tiny Tim's "God bless us all" in their 1933 greetings. . . .

But they've dipped pens and brushes into such familiar—and more worldly—sentiments as the abrupt "Here's How!" or have created little cherubs tooting irreverent horns.

That gives an idea of the range. And it takes only a thumbing of the cards to sense the newer trends.

Shorter And Crisper

For instance—one of the 1933 cards offers "Hello, Old Friend," perhaps to supplant—"We extend on this joyous occasion our sincere and heartiest greetings for the Merry Christmas Season."

All those little twists and turns in raised gold with lace paterns are not so evident. A vivid blue card with long silver lettering and a tiny and plain decoration is one of the new ideas.

Many cards have modernistic lettering. . . Those long legged letters with no capitals.

You are likely to receive a card through the mail with Indians or a fool's cap or most anything with not a word of what it is all about. It will be easy to guess, though.

Although there is little of the Valentine treatment in the cut of the paper stock of Christmas cards, a new note of odd folds and queer flaps has crept in this year.

The religious treatment of Christmas sentiment is less evident.

Perk-eared little dogs of last year have been passed up, but there are elephants and other animals that have no particular Christmas connection.

The NRA'S There Too

Some shops have the NRA and popular animated movie stars as the central idea of cards.

But there are still all of the old fashioned cards in thousands of styles and with thousands of sentiments.

A blessing and a wish is contained in the greeting, "A Christmas greeting to you and a wish for your happiness during the year to come."

An informal benediction is in the verse, "May good luck attend you now and always."

WAITRESSES TO LOSE POSITIONS BY BOOZE BILL

Clause In State Control Bill Says Men Must Serve Malt Beverages.

ARE CIRCULATING PETITIONS HERE

Waitresses employed in hotels and restaurants in Pennsylvania may be thrown out of employment if a provision in the proposed Pennsylvania Liquor Control bill, to be voted on in the senate Monday night remains unchanged.

One of the features of the bill prohibits the serving of liquor and malt liquors by women.

The hotel and restaurant associations of Pennsylvania are opposed to the inclusion of malt liquors in the prohibitory clause. They contended that many hotels and restaurants will not serve anything stronger than beer and see no justification in prohibiting waitresses from serving it.

Since this provision of the bill became known women all over the state, who are employed in capacities of waitresses and hostesses, have been circulating petitions of protest. In the petitions they ask that the words "malt liquors" be excluded from the clause so that they will not be denied the privilege of earning a livelihood as heretofore.

Circulate Petitions

Petitions are being circulated among hotels and restaurants in Gettysburg today in behalf of the large number of women who may be thrown out of employment if this provision of the bill is passed.

These petitions, bearing the signatures of thousands of women from all over the state, will be presented to the judiciary general committee of the senate, to which the bill has been committed, Monday night.

Hotel and restaurant men in Gettysburg are outspoken in their opposition to including malt liquors" in the clause. In general, they agree insofar as having women serve hard liquors is concerned. They point out that much of the dignfied environment will be lost if they must supplant waitresses with waiters.

They also stress their preference to service by waitresses over waiters, stating in this connection that there are no experienced waiters to be had outside of the metropolitan centers. Answering the argument that the provision of the bill would help the unemployment situation, they point out that few, if any of the men unemployed have the requisites or could qualify as waiters. In addition, a census reveals that 75 per cent of the women employed as waitresses either support or help to maintain families and dependents.

Throwing these women out of employment would result in greater hardships, they contend.

Seek Change In ill

If the provision of the bill is changed so as to permit waitresses to serve beer, it will permit retention of all waitresses now employed, it being only necessary to add a waiter to serve hard liquor in those establishments in which both liquors and malt liquors will be served.

Waitresses in Gettysburg are appealing for assistance in their protest and ask patrons and citizens to communicate with their representative and senator or the senate judiciary general committee before Monday night and express their opposition to including the serving of malt liquors in the prohibitory clause.

Leslie M. Bishop Is Buried Friday

Funeral services for Leslie M. Bishop, 46, of Orrtanna, whose body was found in the South Mountain, along the Dug road, Tuesday morning, the victim of accidental shooting, were held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home, the Rev. C. E. Helm, of Reading, a former pastor of the Orrtanna Methodist Episcopal church, officiating. Interment was in Flohr's cemetery.

Pallbearers were Ross King, Harold Biesecker, Clem Wolford, Orman Rebert, Clair Rebert and Weaver Zimmerman.

CODE VIOLATIONS

Informations charging Raymond C. Spangler, Hanover R. 6, and John W. Spangler, of Hanover, with allowing trucks they were driving to coast down hill were lodged before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer by Patrolman James G. Warren, of the state motor patrol.

Fifty Women At Democratic Meeting

Fifty women attended the November meeting of the Democratic woman's club in the Knights of Columbus hall, Friday evening. Miss Edna Eicholtz, president of the club, presided.

The principal speaker was Mrs. Mary Martin, Lincoln avenue, who discussed the NRA.

Musical numbers included a solo by Miss Catherine Eline and a duet by Miss Eline and her mother, Mrs. Vergie Eline, of Littlestown, accompanied by Miss Rider, of Littlestown.

The club decided to hold no December meeting. The next meeting will be held January 26.

The committee in charge of the meeting comprised Mrs. John Sheffer, Mrs. H. F. Harbach and Mrs. Robert E. Fisher. The entertainment committee comprised Mrs. B. C. Brown, Mrs. Elmer W. Warren and Mrs. Ella Weaver.

$90,000 TO BE PAID OUT SOON IN XMAS FUNDS

Total Includes Checks From Eight Banks In Local Trading Area.

GREAT BOOM TO BUSINESS HERE

A golden flood of buying power will be unleashed by banks in Gettysburg's trading area by the end of next week when Christmas saving club accounts will be paid to several thousand persons who foresaw the value of thrift a year ago and set aside small amounts each week.

Although this year's approximate total, $90,000, is less by several thousand dollars than last year, the effect of that amount of buying power, distributed in Gettysburg's trading area just a few weeks before Christmas, will be felt by stores and business places generally.

$50,000 Here

More than half of the approximate total to be paid out by the eight banks in the local trading area will be distributed by the First National and the Gettysburg National banks. Each of these banks will pay out approximately $25,000 in Christmas saving funds. The local banks will put their checks in the mails on December 1.

The largest amount will be paid out by the Littlestown National bank. From that institution will go forward on December 1, checks totaling approximately $28,000.

Approximate amounts to be paid out by the other banks in the Gettysburg trading area follow:

Other Amounts

Biglerville National, $4,500, first week in December; Arendtsville National, $2,000, first week in December; Bendersville National, $1,500, second week in December; Fairfield National, $1,500, December 1, and York Springs National $1,400, December 1.

Already Gettysburg merchants are beginning to display their Christmas wares and to decorate their business places for the holiday season. Because Thanksgiving Day comes a week later this year than last, the Christmas buying season is expected to start immediately after the next national holiday.

Bigler Youth Is Honored At College

Kermit Gulden, of Biglerville, has been elected president of the Industrial Arts society at the Millersville State Teachers college. He will take a leading part in the senior class play, "The Thirteenth Chair," December 9.

Gulden has held the position of assistant in the science department of the college for the past two years. He will be graduated in June.

200 Couples Attend Pan-Hellenic Dance

Two hundred couples attended the Pan-Hellenic dance at the Eddie Plank memorial gymnasium, on Friday evening. Emerson Gill's orchestra, of Cleveland, Ohio, furnished music. Doctor and Mrs. W. A. Hanson and other members of the college faculty were patrons and patronesses.

This evening the annual military ball will be held at the gymnasium, with Gill's orchestra again furnishing the music.

Culp-Taylor Nuptials Are Solemnized in York Springs

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized in the York Springs Lutheran church this morning at 10 o'clock, when Miss Margaret Helen Culp, of York Springs, and Ivan Cletus Taylor, of Bendersville, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. L. B. Hafer, of Gettysburg, pastor of the York Springs Lutheran church, and the Rev. Dr. O. D. Coble, pastor of the Bendersville Lutheran church. The ring ceremony of the Lutheran church was used.

Miss Jean Pearson, of York Springs, gave a short organ recital before the nuptials and played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the processional and recessional.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, H. B. Pearson, of York Springs, wore an ivory satin princess gown with boat neckline and short train of egg-shell tulle, which fell to the knees in front. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her going-away costume was a brown ensemble, with accessories to match, with a corsage of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley.

A sister of the bride, Miss Elsie Culp, of Bound Brook, New Jersey, was the maid of honor and wore a gold crepe gown, with brown accessories. Her arm bouquet was of shaded chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom was attended by Harry Lerew, of Bendersville, as best man. Clair Dull and Guy Routsong, also of Bendersville, were the ushers.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Mary Jane inn, near York Springs, to the immediate families and a few friends.

The bride, a daughter of the late Kenton Culp, of Gettysburg, and Mrs. Grace W. Culp, of Bound Brook, New Jersey, has resided with Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Pearson, an uncle and aunt, since infancy. She is a graduate of the York Springs high school and attended Hood college, Frederick.

Mr. Taylor is a graduate of the Biglerville high school and attended Gettysburg college.

The newly-weds will reside with Mr. and Mrs. Pearson until spring.

Pictorial Review Publishes Story By Mrs. E. Lewars

A new story by Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars, under her pen name of Elsie Singmaster, appears in the current issue of "Pictorial Review," a leading monthly. "The Buttressed Wall" is the title of the story and in it Mrs. Lewars shifts the setting to the World War from Civil War scenes, the latter being the usual background for her interesting and popular short stories of a war nature.

In this new story, romance awakens two young people who were victims of the World War. It is intensely human, evolving around a young man who lost his sight in the war and who eventually marries the wife of his chum, who was killed in action at the front.

The story is attractively illustrated by Robert Lawson.

1933 Christmas Card Sentiments Go Modern

Christmas card designers haven't overlooked Tiny Tim's "God bless us all" in their 1933 greetings. . . .

But they've dipped pens and brushes into such familiar—and more worldly—sentiments as the abrupt "Here's How!" or have created little cherubs tooting irreverent horns.

That gives an idea of the range. And it takes only a thumbing of the cards to sense the newer trends.

Shorter And Crisper

For instance—one of the 1933 cards offers "Hello, Old Friend," perhaps to supplant—"We extend on this joyous occasion our sincere and heartiest greetings for the Merry Christmas Season."

All those little twists and turns in raised gold with lace paterns are not so evident. A vivid blue card with long silver lettering and a tiny and plain decoration is one of the new ideas.

Many cards have modernistic lettering. . . Those long legged letters with no capitals.

You are likely to receive a card through the mail with Indians or a fool's cap or most anything with not a word of what it is all about. It will be easy to guess, though.

Although there is little of the Valentine treatment in the cut of the paper stock of Christmas cards, a new note of odd folds and queer flaps has crept in this year.

The religious treatment of Christmas sentiment is less evident.

Perk-eared little dogs of last year have been passed up, but there are elephants and other animals that have no particular Christmas connection.

The NRA'S There Too

Some shops have the NRA and popular animated movie stars as the central idea of cards.

But there are still all of the old fashioned cards in thousands of styles and with thousands of sentiments.

A blessing and a wish is contained in the greeting, "A Christmas greeting to you and a wish for your happiness during the year to come."

An informal benediction is in the verse, "May good luck attend you now and always."

WAITRESSES TO LOSE POSITIONS BY BOOZE BILL

Clause In State Control Bill Says Men Must Serve Malt Beverages.

ARE CIRCULATING PETITIONS HERE

Women employed as waitresses in hotels and restaurants in Pennsylvania may be thrown out of employment if a provision in the proposed Pennsylvania Liquor Control bill, to be voted on in the senate Monday night, remains unchanged.

One of the features of the bill prohibits the serving of liquor and malt liquors by women.

The hotel and restaurant associations of Pennsylvania are opposed to the inclusion of malt liquors in the prohibitory clause. They contended that many hotels and restaurants will not serve anything stronger than beer and see no justification in prohibiting waitresses from serving it.

Since this provision of the bill became known women all over the state, who are employed in capacities of waitresses and hostesses, have been circulating petitions of protest. In the petitions they ask that the words "malt liquors" be excluded from the clause so that they will not be denied the privilege of earning a livelihood as heretofore.

Circulate Petitions

Petitions are being circulated among hotels and restaurants in Gettysburg today in behalf of the large number of women who may be thrown out of employment if this provision of the bill is passed.

These petitions, bearing the signatures of thousands of women from all over the state, will be presented to the judiciary general committee of the senate, to which the bill has been committed, Monday night.

Hotel and restaurant men in Gettysburg are outspoken in their opposition to including malt liquors" in the clause. In general, they agree insofar as having women serve hard liquors is concerned. They point out that much of the dignfied environment will be lost if they must supplant waitresses with waiters.

They also stress their preference to service by waitresses over waiters, stating in this connection that there are no experienced waiters to be had outside of the metropolitan centers. Answering the argument that the provision of the bill would help the unemployment situation, they point out that few, if any of the men unemployed have the requisites or could qualify as waiters. In addition, a census reveals that 75 per cent of the women employed as waitresses either support or help to maintain families and dependents.

Throwing these women out of employment would result in greater hardships, they contend.

Seek Change In ill

If the provision of the bill is shanged so as to permit waitresses to serve beer, it will permit retention of all waitresses now employed, it being only necessary to add a waiter to serve hard liquor in those establishments in which both liquors and malt liquors will be served.

Waitresses in Gettysburg are appealing for assistance in their protest and ask patrons and citizens to communicate with their representative and senator or the senate judiciary general committee before Monday night and express their opposition to including the serving of malt liquors in the prohibitory clause.

Leslie M. Bishop Is Buried Friday

Funeral services for Leslie M. Bishop, 46, of Orrtanna, whose body was found in the South Mountain, along the Dug road, Tuesday morning, the victim of accidental shooting, were held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home, the Rev. C. E. Heim, of Reading, a former pastor of the Orrtanna Methodist Episcopal church, officiating. Interment was in Flohr's cemetery.

Pallbearers were Ross King, Harold Biesecker, Clem Wolford, Ornan Rebert, Clair Rebert and Weaver Zimmerman.

CODE VIOLATIONS

Informations charging Raymond C. Spangler, Hanover R. 6, and John W. Spangler, of Hanover, with allowing trucks they were driving to coast down hill were lodged before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer by Patrolman James G. Warren, of the state motor patrol.

Fifty Women At Democratic Meeting

Fifty women attended the November meeting of the Democratic woman's club in the Knights of Columbus hall, Friday evening. Miss Edna Eicholtz, president of the club, presided.

The principal speaker was Mrs. Mary Martin, Lincoln avenue, who discussed the NRA.

Musical numbers included a solo by Miss Catherine Eline and a duet by Miss Eline and her mother, Mrs. Vergie Eline, of Littlestown, accompanied by Miss Rider, of Littlestown.

The club decided to hold no December meeting. The next meeting will be held January 26.

The committee in charge of the meeting comprised Mrs. John Sheffer, Mrs. H. F. Harbach and Mrs. Robert E. Fisher. The entertainment committee comprised Mrs. B. C. Brown, Mrs. Elmer W. Warren and Mrs. Ella Weaver.

$90,000 TO BE PAID OUT SOON IN XMAS FUNDS

Total Includes Checks From Eight Banks In Local Trading Area.

GREAT BOOM TO BUSINESS HERE

A golden flood of buying power will be unleashed by banks in Gettysburg's trading area by the end of next week when Christmas saving club accounts will be paid to several thousand persons who foresaw the value of thrift a year ago and set aside small amounts each week.

Although this year's approximate total, $90,000, is less by several thousand dollars than last year, the effect of that amount of buying power, distributed in Gettysburg's trading area just a few weeks before Christmas, will be felt by stores and business places generally.

$50,000 Here

More than half of the approximate total to be paid out by the eight banks in the local trading area will be distributed by the First National and the Gettysburg National banks. Each of these banks will pay out approximately $25,000 in Christmas saving funds. The local banks will put their checks in the mails on December 1.

The largest amount will be paid out by the Littlestown National bank. From that institution will go forward on December 1, checks totaling approximately $28,000.

Approximate amounts to be paid out by the other banks in the Gettysburg trading area follow:

Other Amounts

Biglerville National, $4,500, first week in December; Arendtsville National, $2,000, first week in December; Bendersville National, $1,500, second week in December; Fairfield National, $1,500, December 1, and York Springs National $1,400, December 1.

Already Gettysburg merchants are beginning to display their Christmas wares and to decorate their business places for the holiday season. Because Thanksgiving Day comes a week later this year than last, the Christmas buying season is expected to start immediately after the next national holiday.

Bigler Youth Is Honored At College

Kermit Gulden, of Biglerville, has been elected president of the Industrial Arts society at the Millersville State Teachers college. He will take a leading part in the senior class play, "The Thirteenth Chair," December 9.

Gulden has held the position of assistant in the science department of the college for the past two years. He will be graduated in June.

200 Couples Attend Pan-Hellenic Dance

Two hundred couples attended the Pan-Hellenic dance at the Eddie Plank memorial gymnasium on Friday evening. Emerson Gill's orchestra of Cleveland, Ohio, furnished music. Doctor and Mrs. W. A. Hanson and other members of the college faculty were patrons and patronesses.

This evening the annual military ball will be held at the gymnasium, with Gill's orchestra again furnishing the music.

LIQUOR BILLS ARE DELAYED

Senate Recommits Measures To House; Many Amendments Inserted.

Harrisburg, Nov. 24—Meeting in a brief, perfunctory session with only thirteen members present, the senate Thursday delayed action on 3 of Governor Pinchot's liquor bills, advanced a measure setting up a milk control board and then adjourned for the week.

Bills to regulate sale of liquor after repeal and to set up a system of state stores, create a three man liquor control board, continue a tax of $1.24 a barrel on all malt beverages, were recommitted for further study.

It is possible hearings may be held next week on the state stores measure which was passed by the house Wednesday. A flood of amendments in the house changed many phases of the bills, among others, virtually lifting restrictions on clubs. Senators said the because of these hurried amendments it contains many minor defects which must be corrected.

The recommitals will delay action on the bills one legislative day. They will be up for second reading Monday night and if approved, then the final passage Tuesday. Administration leaders hope the bills can be whipped into satisfactory form and passed finally before prohibition dies on December 5.

After passing the state stores-control bill Wednesday the house adjourned until Monday night.

County Motor

has been settled this year amounting $44.29 as against five a year ago amounting to $1,620.

"Five of our members had occasion to require our free legal service this year as against nine the year before."

E. D. McNelly, field secretary of the Pennsylvania Motor federation, who with Sergeant Boate, of the local state highway patrol unit, and Blaine G. Walters, of Biglerville, chairman of the club's safety committee, organized school boy patrols in the schools of Gettysburg, Littlestown, Fairfield, Biglerville, McSherrystown and York Springs during the past two weeks, addressed the board on the subject of safety work.

The directors decided to postpone the annual meeting, usually held early in December, to after the first of the year. This postponement was made to avoid conflicts with deer hunting season and the holidays. C. A. Bixler was appointed to arrange for the meeting and take full charge of the entertainment for the evening.

New Committees

President Schaff appointed the following committees:

Auditing—R. Blaine Kitzmiller, chairman; A. E. Hutchison and John W. Brehm.

Nominating—Philip R. Bikle, chairman; Robert Neely and Blaine G. Walters.

In connection with the school boy patrols the board authorized the purchase of a monthly series of safety lessons for the schools in which the safety program is functioning.

The board also approved a competitive inspection of the various patrols, the winning patrol to be sent to Washington, D. C., as guests of the motor club, to participate with other prize A.A.A. patrols from all over the country in their annual review before the president.

Various meetings of the patrols will be held in Gettysburg at which time the boys will be entertained in the Majestic theatre as guests of Irving Mirisch, the manager.

Certificates of merit will be given each member of the patrols and medals of honor to those performing outstanding service.

Prior to the meeting the directors were guests of President Scharf at dinner.

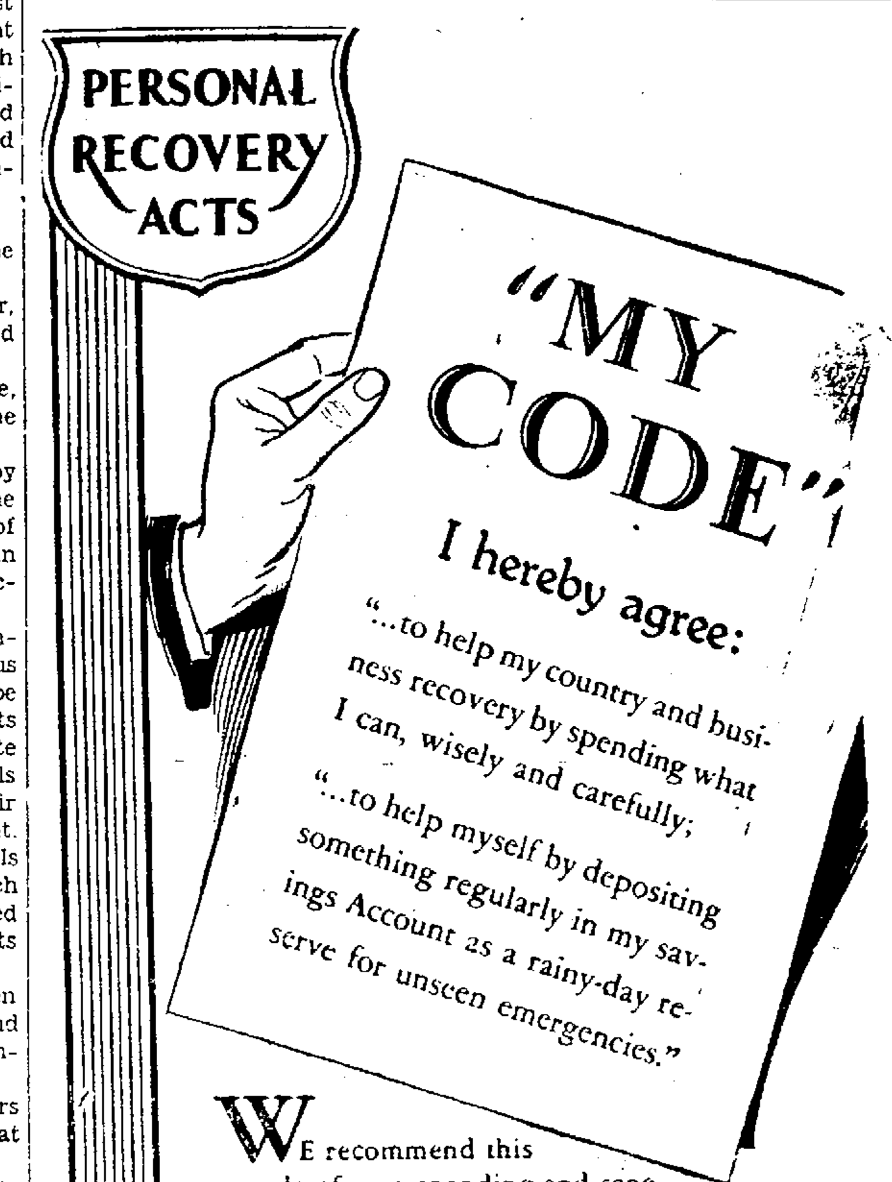

Directors who attended the meeting included:

Philip R. Bikle, John W. Brehm, R. Blaine Kitzmiller, E. H. Dougherty, Henry M. Scharf, all of Gettysburg; George D. Baker, of East Berlin; Dr. T. C. Miller, of Abbottstown; C. L. Eicholtz and C. A. Bixler, of New Oxford; J. R. Hantz and F. E. Coulson, of York Springs; Blaine G. Walters, of Biglerville; A. D. Sheely, of Arendtsville; Edward Newman and Robert Neely, of Fairfield; Harry T. Harner, of Littlestown; I. Z. Musselman, of Ortanna; F. V. Topper, of McSherrytown and Luther E. Bream, of Gardners.

The fall meeting was so successful at Arlington Downs that a spring program has been scheduled foh 1934 at the Texas plant.

If Your Ears Ring With Head Noises

Get from People's Drug Store 1 oz. of Parmint (double strength) and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar. This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take.

Concealing the symbolic crowns on either side of the shrine of the blessed virgin above the main altar, two pictures will be exposed to view. The pictures are nine by six feet in dimension. The one represents blessed Catherine in glory and the other is a new rendition of the traditional picture of the apparition in which blessed Catherine kneels before the blessed virgin. Both are the work of M. Jean du Toit, a native of Nice.

The altars will be adorned with silver and crystal candelabra, with masses of lilies, blue delphinium, blue baby's breath and smilax. Here and there among the array of flowers will be blue vigil lights in crystal bead cases. The archways on either side of the main altar will be transformed into Venetian grilles of bronze. Palms will set off the sanctuary and the adornment will extend to the nave of the chapel, with windows and arches decorated with sheaves of lilies and smilax.

The solemn pontifical high mass on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday will begin at nine o'clock.

Other dignitaries of the church participating in the services will be: the Very Rev. Thomas F. Ryan, S.S.D., president of St. John's university, Brooklyn; the Rev. Edward P. McAdams, pastor of St. Peter's church, Washington, and others.

56 FIRED IN STUDENT SCRAP

Lehigh Freshmen Start Riot And Are Caught Burglarizing Building.

Easton, Nov. 25.—As a result of two nights of fighting between Lafayette college and Lehigh university students, culminating in a free-for-all in front of the Lafayette chapel early Friday morning, fifty-six Lehigh students, arrested in Easton and Bethlehem, are under suspension, two Lafayette students are in the college infirmary with injuries, and two Lehigh freshmen, who are charged with inciting the intercollegiate scraps to create a diversion so they could rob a Lehigh university building, have been dismissed from that institution.

On Thursday numerous calls were received at Lafayette dormitories and fraternity houses challenging the Lafayette students to go to Bethlehem and remove a banner, "Beat Lafayette," strung between dormitories on the campus. Lafayette accepted, went over 150 strong and got the banner, but were given a bitter fight in which five streams from fire hose were used to fight the invaders.

Thursday the deans of the two institutions with representatives of upper classmen organizations of both Lehigh and Lafayette met and it was then explained that while the fight was in progress, two Lehigh freshmen were caught burglarizing the administration building. Before they obtained anything of value, they were caught by university police.

SIX KILLED IN CAR-BUS CRASH

Two Of The Victims Were En Route To Party To Announce Engagement.

Goshen, N. Y., Nov. 25 (AP).—Six persons were killed in a collision between an automobile and a bus about ten miles east of here between Goshen and Chester Friday night. The victims were occupants of the automobile. No one was injured on the bus. The victims were:

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kaiser, of Middletown.

Rose, Marie and Katherine Dur, sisters, who live on the outskirts of Middletown.

Kenneth Baird, of Middletown.

They were bound for Brooklyn to attend a party at which the engagement of Baird and Rose Dur was to have been announced.

Investigation showed that the bus overtook a farm wagon which carried no light. The bus driver said he did not see the vehicle until he was almost upon it. He swung the bus to the left of the road past the wagon, but the rear of the heavy passenger vehicle struck the rear of the wagon. At the same instant the automobile came over the brow of a hill and crashed head-on into the bus.

WOMEN WHO ESCAPED PRISON FARM CAUGHT

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 25 (AP).—Helen Spence and Ruth Clark who escaped ffrom the state prison farm for women at Jacksonville in a truck were captured Friday near Conway.

The truck in which they drove away was found about fifteen miles north of the women's farm, where the pair took to the mountains.

Helen, 21,, the slayer of two men, has escaped several times before. The Clark woman, serving a five-year sentence from Sebastian county for kidnapping, was a trusty guard at the women's farm.

SIFT KIDNAPPING STORY

Phillipsburg, N. J., Nov. 25 (AP).—A youth who said his name was Charles Russell Cohen, of New York, reported to police Friday that he had been turned loose by his captors on a road near farm two days after he was kidnapped at Ithaca, New York, where he attends Cornell university.

Police were guarding the details of the incident at the request of department of justice agents, they said. Cohen is being held while authorities investigate his story. The youth's father is said to be Samuel B. Cohen, New York attorney.

Wild Birds Keep Policemen On Job

North Hollywood, Cal. (AP)—Here is one duck hunter who hunts in season and out, and gets paid for it.

William Lawson, head of the local police patrol, holds a federal permit and has instructions to shoot the wild ducks and mudhens which find their way into Toluca lake and from there prey on the nearby lawns of the film colony residents.

"Of course I'm suppose to look out for burglars and the like, too," said Lawson, "but it's the wild mallard, mudhens and teal which keep me busiest."

Pair Turn Initiation Joke on Perpetrators

An initiation "ceremony" of a Dickinson law school fraternity on Friday night turned out to be a "boomerang" when two humble neophytes initiated their initiators.

The two students, seeking entrance into the mystic portals of the fraternity, were taken to Harrisburg from Carlisle and left there to find their own way back home. The four members of the fraternity who took them to that city told the pledges that their self-reliance would be tested in attempting to hitch-hike back to Carlisle.

Tells Story of Arrest

Hitch-hiking at its best is bad enough, but late at night it is worse, so the two students concocted a plan that would relieve them of further worry in getting back home and also that would repay their future fraternity brothers. They called the fraternity house on the 'phone and left word that the four "brothers" who took them to Harrisburg had better come and get them as they were in jail, arrested by city police for attempting to "bum" a ride to Carlisle.

Then the two future attorneys called at city hall and asked Lieutenant "Marty" Keys to help them out with the joke by locking them up. The lieutenant helped their cause along and in a few minutes they were resting in a cell in the police station.

Keys Opens Cell Doors

A half hour later four young men rushed breathlessly into the police station and asked for the release of the "arrested students." Lieutenant Keys pondered and said that he was not sure he would release them but finally asked whether the quartet could pay the fine.

"How much is the fine?" one of the four asked.

Assuming a change in heart, the lieutenant agreed to release the two if the members of the fraternity would promise that they would not permit anyone connected with the fraternity to try to beg rides from Harrisburg to Carlisle in the future. Only too glad to be let off so easily the four agreed, and returned to Carlisle with the initiates.

DUKE IS FINED FOR LOTTERY

English Nobleman Ordered To Pay $143 For Conducting Lottery.

London, Nov. 25 (AP)—The Duke of Atholl, one of the leading figures of the British peerage, was fined £25 (currently about $132) Friday for contravention of England's 110-year-old lotteries act.

Sir Rollo Graham Campbell, chief metropolitan magistrate, who presided over the hearing on the original summons, handed down his decision in the Bow street police station.

The 66-year-old Scottish warrior's attorney, Norman Birkett, declared he would appeal the case to a higher court.

In addition to the fine, the duke also was ordered to pay the costs—amounting to 35 guineas.

The accusation was based on "a British Helpers association appeal" sponsored by the duke to "raise funds for the provision of the best medical treatment for people of moderate means."

Some £152,404 (about $740,732) was raised, a third being set aside for charity and about a fifth given to 748 contributors. The remainder went for expenses.

The defense pleaded no offense against the Lotteries act was intended. A novel explanation for the origin of the idea was offered by the duke. "It came from heaven," he said.

STOCK REPORT

New York, Nov. 25 (AP).—Stocks were steady to moderately higher in quiet early trading today. Alcohol was firm while improvement in other parts of the list was rather spotty.

Issues gaining a sizable fraction to around a point included American Can, U. S. Steel, National Distillers, Schenley, U. S. Smelting and Standard Oil of New Jersey. Union Pacific was unchanged while Consolidated Gas slipped a shade.

Three Killed In Crash Of Plane

Wedron, Ill., Nov. 25 (AP)—Three members of the crew of a giant United Air lines plane were killed Friday in the crash of the ship on a farm near here.

The dead are: R. W. Radoll, 33, pilot; Copilot Boyd Grover, 27, both of Chicago, and Miss Hazel Goodman, 27, stewardess, Kansas City.

The crash occurred shortly after the pilot had wirelessed to headquarters that "everything O. K. except visibility low."

Farm Boy Saw Crash

Harold Hise, farm boy, said he saw the craft circle the field several times and then dive to the ground. Air line officials from Chicago started an investigation along with Sheriff E. J. Walter and the coroner. The inquest was set for today.

The plane left Chicago at 9:54 a. m. It carried no mail or express and merely was being transferred to Kansas City.

The crash occurred a short distance from the spot where Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's plane plunged to earth when the premier American airman dropped to safety by parachute while on the Chicago-Et. Louis air-mail run a year or so before he became famous by his non-stop transatlantic flight.

YOUNGER POLICEMAN WANTED

Los Angeles (AP)—Younger men are wanted on the Los Angeles police department. The city civil service commission has set 30 years as the maximum age at which a man may enter the police department. Heretofore it was 35 years.

A total of 1,292 buck deer were killed in Mason county, Texas, during the 1932 season.

Would Establish 2,000 Airports By Means Of Civil Works Fund

Washington, Nov. 25 (AP)—Establishment of 2,000 aircraft landing fields throughout the nation in an effort to stimulate private flying and the aviation industry in general was decided upon Friday by the department of commerce.

Eugene L. Vidal, aeronautics chief of the department, said the civil works administration had allotted the department $10,000,000 which will be given to cities and towns now having inadequate facilities. Distribution of the funds, Vidal said, will depned on the response of communities. He explained they will be allotted on the basis of demand and need for facilities.

The aeronautics chief estimated that $8,000,000 of the $10,000,000 will be spent for labor and that this will give employment to 50,000 persons now out of work. Communities are to be required to provide only the unimproved land which may either be owned or leased, Vidal said. He added that applications should be made within the next two weeks.

Declaring that the smallest towns are expected to benefit, Vidal said:

"We anticipate that the larger towns and cities which as yet do not have airports will be the first to recognize the advantage of this plan, but it is important also that emergency fields be established in localities where large towns do not exist and we wish to point out that even the smallest villages are eligible.

"Establishment of 2,000 additional aircraft landing fields will extend the federal airway system to parts of the country not now served by those routes, and will increase private flying as well as improve safety due to an increase in the number of landing facilities.

"While the routes established in this way will not be comparable to the lighted and radio equipped airways which are provided with facilities for flights at night and in bed weather, they will be of utmost assistance for day flying."

SMITH URGES GOLD DOLLAR

Former New York Governor Assails Monetary Policy Of Roosevelt.

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—Alfred E. Smith broke openly Friday with President Roosevelt's monetary program, declaring he was for sound money and a return to the gold standard.

"I am for gold dollars as against baloney dollars," said the former governor in an editorial to be published in the December issue of the New Outlook.

"I am for experience as against experiment. If I must choose between private management of a business and management of a government bureaucracy, I am for private management.

On Side Of Experience

"If I must choose between the leaders of the past, with all the errors they have made and with all the selfishness they have been guilty of, and the inexperienced young college professors who hold no responsible public office but who are perfectly ready to turn 130,000,000 Americans into guinea pige for experimentation, I am going to be for the people who have made the country what it is.

"And I say this with full knowledge of the fact that there are many things in the old order of society which I should like to have changed and which I do not applaud or even condone"

Portions of Smith's editorial were made public at the office of the New Outlook. The former governor, who recently was a guest at tea at the White House, was not present.

RIVAL FASCIST GROUPS RIOT AT LONDON MEETING

London, Nov. 25 (AP). — Men heaving chairs and women swinging umbrellas joined in a battle of rival Fascist organizations at the meeting hall Friday night and many persons were seriously hurt.

The uproar started when a heckler, addressing the man on the platform, shouted: "I object to that man cleaning his fingernails in public."

Immediately half the audience rose, shouting 'Apology!" The platform was bombarded with chairs hundreds of which were smashed. Several men lay unconscious on the floor, some under piles of chairs, when a strong force of police arrived and quelled the riot. The Imperial Fascist league proceeded with its meeting.

BENCH WARRANTS OUT FOR 3 BANK OFFICIALS

Boston, Nov. 25 (AP)—Indictments alleging that Theodore M. Logan, president of the State National bank, Lynn; John A. Derry, president of the Salem Trust company, Salem, and Daniel C. Mullonley, president of the Federal National bank, Boston, owed more than $1,000,000 to the bank system a few months before the Federal National was closed were made public Friday.

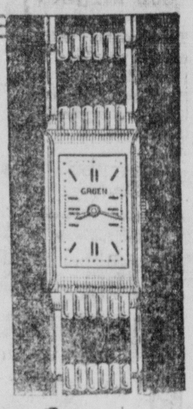

Bench warrants were issued for the immediate arrest of the officials, already out on heavy bails on indictments returned in the last few months.

Bullets And Nevonians Drill For Final Battle

On Thanksgiving day the Bullets of Gettysburg and the Nevonians of Franklin and Marshall, will resume play in a rivalry which is among the most intense in the East's football. For very definite reasons the 1933 encounter looms as one of the most attractive of the series which began in 1890 and which has produced many classic grid conflicts.

Next Thursday afternoon "Hen" Bream's boys will contest Holman's henchmen for the edge in the now stalemated rivalry. A victory will give Gettysburg undisputed possessions of the Eastern Pennsylvania conference gonfalon. To lose the turkey day tilt would throw the Bullets into a deadlock with Muhlenberg for conference honors — a situation which the batlefield boys are keen to prevent. Of course Lancaster's Orangemen feel differently about the matter and are out to regain ground lost in early conference engagements.

Each Have 18 Wins

A checkup on the results of past Gettysburg-Franklin and Marshall games is an interesting study. Of the forty games played to date, mostly on Lancaster soil, each of the rivals have achieved eighteen victories and four tie scores. Games are traditionally close as is evidenced in the fact that twenty-three of these games have been decided by a touchdown or a field goal. From 1918 to 1924 neither side was able to produce a touchdown and most frequently the pregame favorite has gone down to defeat.

Only two lop-sided scores obtain. The Lancastrians helped Gettysburg initiate football in 1890 with a 68-0 shellacking. Eager as they were, the Orange and Blue could never avenge that disgrace until 1905 when the famed "Polly" Sieber led his cohorts to a 72-0 victory. Gettysburg has not won a game from the Nevonians since 1929, though a 6-6 draw was the result last year. Franklin and Marshall won by a safety in 1930, and by a single touchdown in 1931. Gettysburgians believe that a Bullet victory is overdue.

Players On Injured List

Both Gettysburg and Franklin and Marshall are bemoaning the devastating injuries that have marked their recent games. Cannon has been sent out of the Red Rose line-up for some time, and now Rampulla and Morrocco, backs, and Ehrensberger, a husky lineman, are to some extent incapacitated. On the other side, Bogar, Gettysburg center, is definitely out for the season with a leg injury, and Olkewicz, quarterback, and Cico, fullback, are problematical quantities for Thursday. Coaches in both camps will attempt effective replacements, with Coach Bream facing the greater task as a result of fewer capable substitutes.

It is interesting to note that few persons will hazard a guess on the probable outcome of the 41st encounter. The very general concensus of opinion is that the teams are evenly matched, with F. and M. holding the advantage of playing on home terrain. As a matter of fact, the Bullets have defeated Muhlenberg and Ursinus, who in turn have trounced the Nevonians, but in other games with Swarthmore and Dickinson, the F. and M. superiority was much more pronounced that that of G-burg. Comparative scores never did mean anything in this annual classic which further substantiates the wisdom of withholding reputable opinion.

Last Minute Drills

The probable presence of Danny McGinnis, Lancaster boy, in the Gettysburg line-up adds a new element of interest to the approaching game. His appearance on Williamson field will bring back memories of "Toppy" Hoar and Earl "Streak" McMillan, who ever made things rough for the Blue and White. Danny has done fine work for the Bullets in a halfback role and will be eager to demonstrate his wares before the home audince.

And so both teams are putting in strenuous and last minute licks to be in tip-top condition for the annual fray. Holman wants to finish a more or less successful season in a blaze of glory, and "Hen" Ream would rathe: win his fourth conference championship in seven years at the helm of Bullet football than anything else you could mention. Followers of both teams await eagerly the opening whistle and another of those fine ball games that have made Franklin and Marshall-Gettysburg grid history.

Woman Doctor's Chief Aim in Life To Guard Happiness of Only Son

Chicago, Nov. 25 (AP)—Self-contained, strong of will, frail, yet energetic, always the mistress of her household—such a woman is Dr. Alice Lois Lindsay Wynekoop, charged at the age of 62 with murdering her daughter-in-law.

Although a tireless student and a keen-minded member of a medical family—her late husband, two brothers-in-law, a daughter and her father, all were physicians—the chief purpose of her life apparently was to guard the happiness and welfare of her only son, Earle, 27, husband of the slain Rheta.

Waiting at the county morgue to tell the coroner's jury that it was she who fired a pistol bullet through Rheta's heart, the bowed little woman physician dismissed with a few words the matter of Earle's philandering among women.

Defends Son's Morals

"The World Fair, where he worked and met those girls, was a whirligig," she said. "Of necessity he was away from home a great deal. He and Rheta were drawn apart before they realized it."

She reviewed her feelings of Tuesday afternoon as she stood beside Rheta's body on an operating table in her home and, she said, came to realize that the girl was dead from an anesthetic. She told of going for a pistol because of fear for her professional reputation.

"Under identical circumstances, I think I would act again identically as I have acted," she said. "Of course circumstances would not be identical, so the question cannot be properly answered, but that is my feeling now, in so far as I have any feeling."

Praises Her Victim

Seemingly unaware of any incongruity in her statements, the elderly woman doctor talked fondly of Rheta, her tone casual the while.

"She was a delightful child," she said. "Not fundamentally a philosopher, but the artistic type, you know. She was a quiet little mouse. She read, walked, did her little tasks. She could fix up delicious little evening suppers and tidbits. Her family history was tubercular, and she was always afraid of it. Always she was weighing herself, counting calories."

Even under the strain of hours of police questioning, Dr. Wynekoop made no hint of admission that Rheta's death was not accidental, declaring in firm and quiet tones that she believed the girl was dead from the anesthetic before the pistol bullet pierced her heart.

Apparently near exhaustion as she was led away to a jail cell after the coroner's jury charged Rheta's death was murder, Dr. Wynekoop required the assistance of two policemen in order to stand, but she was calm, straightlipped and her eyes were dry.

FORBIDDEN VALLEY

By William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS: Curt Tennyson has been persuaded by his former chief in the Royal Mounted to undertake one more man hunt. The quarry is Igor Karakhan, notorious international crook. The trail has led Curt and his partner, Paul St. Claire, to a tiny settlement in the Canadian Northwest called Russian Lake. Curt has rescued Sonya Nichols from the evil designs of a half-breed, and now Sonya is telling her savior the history of the Cossack post that was the original settlement at Russian Lake. In retaliation for years of torture and tribute, the Klosohee Indians had attacked the Cossacks, Sonya says.

Chapter 12

THE OLD FORT

"While the Cossacks were drinking heavily," said Sonya, "the eighty surviving Klosohees massacred them all, burned their bodies in one huge pyre; and their old shaman laid the dread Thunder Curse on the place. Only the priest was left alive.

"It was a summer night like tonight," Sonya added. "Eight men who escaped the first rush, barricaded themselves in one of the rooms, but the Klosohees chopped the door off its hinges and killed them. I imagined I could still see the dark stains on the walls of that room."

Curt thought that the Indians he had seen on the landing that afternoon were a pretty mild set to be descendants of the fiery tribe who had battled the Cossacks to a standstill, returning massacre for extortion. "They've certainly come down a notch," he remarked. "They're as peaceful as coast Siwash now."

"Oh, you're mistaken; the Indians around here aren't Klosohees," she corrected him. "They're descendants of another band that used to live down toward Tellacet. The Klosohees fled back into the mountains after that massacre, and they've stayed there ever since. They're an almost unknown band. They live up north in the Lilluar headwaters, and keep themselves isolated from other tribes, and they won't let white people come into their territory at all."

Curt recalled a time when he had sat on the pier at Fort McMurray with Inspector Jamieson of the Indian Bureau, and Jamieson had told him about a "lost" tribe in the Lilluar Mountains. These Klosohees might be the tribe Jamieson meant.

According to Jamieson's account they were a wild and unapproachable clan, but not treacherous like the nomads of the Sikanni and Nahanni countries. He had so far persuaded the Indian Bureau to let them alone because they minded their own business and clutched their freedom so pathetically.

Gliding ashore, he beached the 'breed's canoe and started up the path with his companion. As he watched her moccasins play in and out of the yellow circle of light that he directed at the trail, he thought what small things they were—smaller even that Regina Ducharme's.

Once when her head bobbed close to his he caught the faint odor of thyme perfume, and it put him in mind of the thyme-scented kerchief which had unlocked that Spanish consul case for him in Montreal. But what a difference between that soft palid woman and this clean-limbed vital girl at his side!

The touch of her hand on his arm, as he guided her past root-snags and shielded her from brush flipping back, was an experience such as he had never known with Rosalie Marlin. Although he had been acquainted with her so short a time, he felt the impact of her personality, a very positive and cogent force.

The fort loomed up just ahead. Startingly near, the owl sounded its weird call again. Curt reached down for a stone and sent it clattering aginst the old building. A soft-winged shadow passed over them and they heard the angry clicking of the bird's bill.

At the door he flipped the light on the massive rock walls and the broad parapet twenty-five feet high where soldiers once paced sentry-go at night. A clump of devil's club nearly choked the entrance. He pushed a way through the clump, and they stepped into the gloomy hallway that led down the center.

There were six rooms on the ground floor, but the second story was one big room, probably the Cossacks' assembly place. The roof had partly fallen in; the floor above had rotted, leaving only the thick beams; the dust of many generations covered everything; but otherwise the ruin lay there as it had been left on the night of the massacre, one hundred and twenty years ago.

Down the dusty hallway led a fresh moccasin track, small and dainty. Curt knew it was Sonya's, on some previous expedition. She certainly had nerve, to visit that place alone.

At the far end of the corridor she pointed to the doorway of the room at their left. In the hushed silence Sonya lowered her voice to a whisper.

"The massacre room, Mr. Ralston. Those last eight Cossacks barricaded themselves here. These blows were from the copper axes of the Klosohees as they broke down the door."

Inside the room Curt played the flash about. A dozen rusty muskets of the flintlock type lay scattered on the floor. He picked one up and clicked the heavy hammer. A spark leaped. Against an empty powder canister lay a broken sword with richly chased hilt.

He rubbed away the corrosion till he made out the loping wolf insignia of the old Cossacks, surrounded by the imperial crest of the Romanoffs. Not caring for so gruesome a souvenir, he put it down and turned his flash on the walls. Those dark discolorations, splotchy and sinister-looking—were they merely seepage from rain and snow, or bloodstains of the murdered Cossacks?

He took Sonya out of the ghastly place into the clean sweet night air, and they went on toward the post.

"It was plain justice that the Klosohees did wipe out those Cossacks," he remarked grimly. "The Czaristic regime allowed torture like this to go on for two thousand miles up and down the Pacific Coast. They knew all about it; they were just as brutal to their own subjects, and they kept it up right down into modern times.

"Thank heaven, that regime got what was coming to it, too! The Leninists did a good job when they wiped that depravity out, root, stock and branch. They deserve thanks—"

Sonya stopped suddenly, and her hand dropped from Curt's arm. "Thanks?" she whirled on him, her eyes flashing. "To that crew of murderers?"

Her words came in a torrent, angry ringing words. "You don't realize what you're saying! "You don't know anything about the red wave of bloodshed that swept all over Russia in '17 and '18.

"You were here in peaceful Canada, idling around pleasantly on some river or mountain range. You didn't see hundreds and thousands of innocent people killed, to atone for what a guilty few had done. Thanks—to those killers? Don't you ever say a thing like that to me!"

Curt stepped back as though she had struck him. Her anger was like a blow, so sudden and violent and utterly unexpected. For a moment he hardly knew what to say. Then he became a little angry himself. What he had just said didn't call for any such tirade from her.

"If you please," he said stiffly, "I limited my statement to the Czaristic outfit. And I wasn't idling around pleasantly during that time; I was pushing a plane back and forth across the front in northern France. I don't condone this 'red wave of bloodshed' that you speak about. I said it was a good thing that the Leninists swept the Romanoff regime off the map. I'm sorry if my opinion wounded you, but—it's my opinion.

"You're welcome to it!"

"Let's not have any angry feelings about it, please."

"I'm not angry."

"Well, if you're not, I wouldn't want to be close by when you are!"

Sonya struggled to control herself. "Let's drop it."

"All right."

In an awkward silence they walked on out the path. Curt wondered, in a bewildered way, what on earth his remark had touched off in her, to make her fly all to pieces like that. He had recovered from his own anger, but her fiery words were ringing in his ears yet.

Near the tent she stopped, faced him. "You needn't go on to the post with me; it's only a few steps." She gave him her hand. "I'm really grateful to you and your partner for coming over to that island. It was awfully nice of you, and I won't ever forget it."

Curt tried to detain her. Somehow he had offended her violently, and he did want to part on friendly terms. But she disengaged her hand, turned, left him, and vanished up the trail in the dusk.

He was still staring after her when Paul came out of the tent.

"I say, Paul," he remarked briefly, "it's a good thing you and I went over to that island and stopped that."

"Why so?"

"Well, if we hadn't, I'm thinking there'd be a dead half-breed over there by now!"

FORBIDDEN VALLEY

By William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS: Curt Tennyson has been persuaded by his former chief in the Royal Mounted to undertake one more man hunt. The quarry is Igor Karakhan, notorious international crook. The trail has led Curt and his partner, Paul St. Claire, to a tiny settlement in the Canadian Northwest called Russian Lake. Curt has rescued Sonya Nichols from the evil designs of a half-breed, and now Sonya is telling her savior the history of the Cossack post that was the original settlement at Russian Lake. In retaliation for years of torture and tribute, the Klosohee Indians had attacked the Cossacks, Sonya says.

Chapter 12

THE OLD FORT

"While the Cossacks were drinking heavily," said Sonya, "the eighty surviving Klosohees massacred them all, burned their bodies in one huge pyre; and their old shaman laid the dread Thunder Curse on the place. Only the priest was left alive.

"It was a summer night like tonight," Sonya added. "Eight men who escaped the first rush, barricaded themselves in one of the rooms, but the Klosohees chopped the door off its hinges and killed them. I imagined I could still see the dark stains on the walls of that room."

Curt thought that the Indians he had seen on the landing that afternoon were a pretty mild set to be descendants of the fiery tribe who had battled the Cossacks to a standstill, returning massacre for extortion. "They've certainly come down a notch," he remarked. "They're as peaceful as coast Siwash now."

"Oh, you're mistaken; the Indians around here aren't Klosohees," she corrected him. "They're descendants of another band that used to live down toward Tellacet. The Klosohees fled back into the mountains after that massacre, and they've stayed there ever since. They're an almost unknown band. They live up north in the Lilluar headwaters, and keep themselves isolated from other tribes, and they won't let white people come into their territory at all."

Curt recalled a time when he had sat on the pier at Fort McMurray with Inspector Jamieson of the Indian Bureau, and Jamieson had told him about a "lost" tribe in the Lilluar Mountains. These Klosohees might be the tribe Jamieson meant.

56 FIRED IN STUDENT SCRAP

Lehigh Freshmen Start Riot And Are Caught Burglarizing Building.

Easton, Nov. 25—As a result of two nights of fighting between Lafayette college and Lehigh university students, culminating in a free-for-all in front of the Lafayette chapel early Friday morning fifty-six Lehigh students, arrested in Easton and Bethlehem, are under suspension, two Lafayette students are in the college infirmary with injuries, and two Lehigh freshmen, who are charged with inciting the intercollegiate scraps to create a diversion so they could rob a Lehigh university building, have been dismissed from that institution

On Thursday numerous calls were received at Lafayette dormitories and fraternity houses challenging the Lafayette students to go to Bethlehem and remove a banner, "Beat Lafayette," strung between dormitories on the campus Lafayette accepted, went over 150 strong and got the banner, but were given a bitter fight in which five streams from fire hose were used to fight the invaders

Thursday the deans of the two institutions with representatives of upper classmen organizations of both Lehigh and Lafayette met and it was then explained that while the fight was in progress, two Lehigh freshmen were caught burglarizing the administration building Before they obtained anything of value, they were caught by university police

Two Of The Victims Were En Route To Party To Announce Engagement.

Goshen N Y, Nov 25 (AP)—Six persons were killed in a collision between an automobile and a bus about ten miles east of here between Goshen and Chester Friday night. The victims were occupants of the automobile No one was injured on the bus The victims were

Mr and Mrs Jacob Kaiser, of Middletown

Rose, Marie and Katherine Dur sisters, who live on the outskirts of Middletown

Kenneth Baud, of Middletown.

They were bound for Brooklyn to attend a party at which the engagement of Baird and Rose Dur was to have been announced

Investigation showed that the bus overtook a farm wagon which carried no light The bus driver said he did not see the vehicle until he was almost upon it He swung the bus to the left of the road past the wagon, but the rear of the heavy passenger vehicle struck the rear of the wagon At the same instant the automobile came over the brow of a hill and crashed head-on into the bus

Pair Turn Initiation Joke on Perpetrators

An initiation "ceremony" of a Dickinson law school fraternity on Friday night turned out to be a "boomerang" when two humble neophytes initiated their initiators

The two students, seeking entrance into the mystic portals of the fraternity, were taken to Harrisburg from Carlisle and left there to find their own way back home The four members of the fraternity who took them to that city told the pledges that their self-reliance would be tested in attempting to hitch-hike back to Carlisle

Tells Story of Arrest

Hitch-hiking at its best is bad enough, but late at night it is worse, so the two students concocted a plan that would relieve them of further worry in getting back home and also that would repay their future fraternity brothers They called the fraternity house on the 'phone and left word that the four 'brothers' who took them to Harrisburg had better come and get them as they were in jail; arrested by city police for attempting to 'bum' a ride to Carlisle

Then the two future attorneys called at city hall and asked Lieutenant 'Marty' Keys to help them out with the joke by locking them up The lieutenant helped their cause along and in a few minutes they were resting in a cell in the police station

Keys Opens Cell Doors

A half hour later four young men rushed breathlessly into the police station and asked for the release of the "arrested students" Lieutenant Keys pondered and said that he was not sure he would release them but finally asked whether the quartet could pay the fine

How much is the fine?' one of the four asked

Assuming a change in heart, the lieutenant agreed to release the two if the members of the fraternity would promise that they would not permit anyone connected with the fraternity to try to beg rides from Harrisburg to Carlisle in the future Only too glad to be let off so easily the four agreed, and returned to Carlisle with the initiates

DUKE IS FINED FOR LOTTERY

English Nobleman Ordered To Pay $143 For Conducting Lottery.

London Nov 25 (AP)—The Duke of Atholl, one of the leading figures of the British peerage, was fined £25 (currently about $132) Friday for contravention of England's 110-year-old lotteries act

Sir Rollo Graham Campbell, chief metropolitan magistrate, who presided over the hearing on the original summons, handed down his decision in the Bow street police station

The 66-year-old Scottish warrior's attorney, Norman Birkett, declared he would appeal the case to a higher court

In addition to the fine the duke also was ordered to pay the costs—amounting to 35 guineas

The accusation was based on a British Helpers association appeal sponsored by the duke to 'raise funds for the provision of the best medical treatment for people of moderate means"

Some £152,404 (about $740,732) was raised, a third being set aside for charity and about a fifth given to 748 contributors The remainder went for expenses

The defense pleaded no offense against the Lotteries act was intended A novel explanation for the origin of the idea was offered by the duke. "It came from heaven, he said.

Would Establish 2,000 Airports By Means Of Civil Works Fund

Washington Nov 25 (AP)—Establishment of 2 000 aircraft landing fields throughout the nation in an effort to stimulate private flying and the aviation industry in general was decided upon Friday by the department of commerce

Eugene L McAdal aeronautics chief of the department, said the civil works administration had allotted the department $10,000 000 which will be given to cities and towns now having inadequate facilities Distribution of the funds Vidal said, will depned on the response of communities He explained they will be allotted on the basis of demand and need for facilities

The aeronautics chief estimated that $8 000 000 of the $10 000 000 will be spent for labor and that this will give employment to 50,000 persons now out of work Communities are to be required to provide only the unimproved land which may either be owned or leased. Vidal said He added that applications should be made within the next two weeks.

Declaring that the smallest towns are expected to benefit Vidal said

"We anticipate that the larger towns and cities which as yet do not have airports will be the first to recognize the advantage of this plan, but it is important also that emergency fields be established in localities where large towns do not exist and we wish to point out that even the smallest villages are eligible

Establishment of 2 000 additional aircraft landing fields will extend the federal airway system to parts of the country not now served by those routes, and will increase private flying as well as improve safety due to an increase in the number of landing facilities

"While the routes established in this way will not be comparable to the lighted and radio equipped airways which are provided with facilities for flights at night and in bed weather, they will be of utmost assistance for day flying"

SMITH URGES GOLD DOLLAR

Former New York Governor Assails Monetary Policy Of Roosevelt.

New York, Nov 25 (AP)—Alfred E Smith broke openly Friday with President Roosevelt's monetary program, declaring he was for sound money and a return to the gold standard.

"I am for gold dollars as against baloney dollars," said the former governor in an editorial to be published in the December issue of the New Outlook

"I am for experience as against experiment If I must choose between private management of a business and management of a government bureaucracy, I am for private management

On Side Of Experience

"If I must choose between the leaders of the past, with all the errors they have made and with all the selfishness they have been guilty of, and the inexperienced young college professors who hold no responsible public office but who are perfectly ready to turn 130,000,000 Americans into guinea pigs for experimentation, I am going to be for the people who have made the country what it is

"And I say this with full knowledge of the fact that there are many things in the old order of society which I should like to have changed and which I do not applaud or even condone"

Portions of Smith's editorial were made public at the office of the New Outlook. The former governor, who recently was a guest at tea at the White House, was not present

Bullets And Nevonians Drill For Final Battle

On Thanksgiving day the Bullets of Gettysburg and the Nevonians of Franklin and Marshall, will resume play in a rivalry which is among the most intense in the East's football For very definite reasons the 1933 encounter looms as one of the most attractive of the series which began in 1890 and which has produced many classic grid conflicts

Next Thursday afternoon "Hen" Bream's boys will contest Holman's henchmen for the edge in the now stalemated rivalry A victory will give Gettysburg undisputed possessions of the Eastern Pennsylvania conference gonfalon. To lose the turkey day tilt would throw the Bullets into a deadlock with Muhlenberg for conference honors — a situation which the batlefield boys are keen to prevent Of course Lancaster's Orangemen feel differently about the matter and are out to regain ground lost in early conference engagements

Each Have 18 Wins

A checkup on the results of past Gettysburg-Franklin and Marshall games is an interesting study Of the forty games played to date, mostly on Lancaster soil, each of the rivals have achieved eighteen victories and four tie scores Games are traditionally close as is evidenced in the fact that twenty-three of these games have been decided by a touchdown or a field goal From 1918 to 1924 neither side was able to produce a touchdown and most frequently the pregame favorite has gone down to defeat

Only two lop-sided scores obtain The Lancastrians helped Gettysburg initiate football in 1890 with a 68-0 shellacking Eager as they were, the Orange and Blue could never avenge that disgrace until 1905 when the famed "Polly" Sieber led his cohorts to a 72-0 victory Gettysburg has not won a game from the Nevonians since 1929 though a 6-6 draw was the result last year Franklin and Marshall won by a safety in 1930, and by a single touchdown in 1931 Gettysburgians believe that a Bullet victory is overdue

Players On Injured List

Both Gettysburg and Franklin and Marshall are bemoaning the devastating injuries that have marked their recent games Cannon has been sent out of the Red Rose line-up for some time, and now Rampulla and Morrocco, backs, and Ehrensberger, a husky lineman are to some extent incapacitated On the other side Bogar, Gettysburg center, is definitely out for the season with a leg injury, and Olkewicz, quarterback and Cico, fullback, are problematical quantities for Thursday Coaches in both camps will attempt effective replacements, with Coach Bream facing the greater task as a result of fewer capable substitutes

It is interesting to note that few persons will hazard a guess on the probable outcome of the 41st encounter The very general concensus of opinion is that the teams are evenly matched, with F and M holding the advantage of playing on home terrain As a matter of fact, the Bullets have defeated Muhlenberg and Ursinus, who in turn have trounced the Nevonians, but in other games with Swarthmore and Dickinson, the F and M superiority was much more pronounced that that of G-burg Comparative scores never did mean anything in this annual classic which further substantiates the wisdom of withholding reputable opinion

Last Minute Drills

The probable presence of Danny McGinnis, Lancaster boy, in the Gettysburg line-up adds a new element of interest to the approaching game His appearance on Williamson field will bring back memories of "Toppy" Hoar and Earl "Streak" McMillan, who ever made things rough for the Blue and White Danny has done fine work for the Bullets in a halfback role and will be eager to demonstrate his wares before the home audince.

And so both teams are putting to be in tip-top condition for the annual fray. Holman wants to finish a more or less successful season in a blaze of glory, and "Hen" Bream would rather win his fourth conference championship in seven years at the helm of Bullet football than anything else you could mention. Followers of both teams await eagerly the opening whistle and another of those fine ball games that have made Franklin and Marshall-Gettysburg grid history.

Woman Doctor's Chief Aim in Life To Guard Happiness of Only Son

Chicago, Nov 25 (AP)—Self-contained strong of will, frail yet energetic always the mistress of her household—such a woman is Dr Alice Lois Lindsay Wynekoop charged at the age of 62 with murdering her daughter-in-law

Although a tireless student and a keen-minded member of a medical family—her late husband, two brothers-in-law, a daughter and her father, all were physicians—the chief purpose of her life apparently was to guard the happiness and welfare of her only son, Earle, 27, husband of the slain Rheta

Waiting at the county morgue to tell the coroner's jury that it was she who fired a pistol bullet through Rheta's heart, the bowed little woman physician dismissed with a few words the matter of Earle's philandering among women

Defends Son's Morals

"The World Fair, where he worked and met those girls, was a whirligig," she said "Of necessity he was away from home a great deal He and Rheta were drawn apart before they realized it"

She reviewed her feelings of Tuesday afternoon as she stood beside Rheta's body on an operating table in her home and, she said, came to realize that the girl was dead from an anesthetic She told of going for a pistol because of fear for her professional reputation

"Under identical circumstances I think I would act again identically as I have acted," she said "Of course circumstances would not be identical, so the question cannot be properly answered, but that is my feeling now, in so far as I have any feeling"

Praises Her Victim

Seemingly unaware of any incongruity in her statements, the elderly woman doctor talked fondly of Rheta, her tone casual the while

"She was a delightful child," she said "Not fundamentally a philosopher, but the artistic type, you know She was a quiet little mouse She read, walked, did her little tasks She could fix up delicious little evening suppers and tidbits Her family history was tubercular, and she was always afraid of it. Always she was weighing herself, counting calories"

Even under the strain of hours of police questioning, Dr Wynekoop made no hint of admission that Rheta's death was not accidental, declaring in firm and quiet tones that she believed the girl was dead from the anesthetic before the pistol bullet pierced her heart

Apparently near exhaustion as she was led away to a jail cell after the coroner's jury charged Rheta's death was murder, Dr Wynekoop required the assistance of two policemen in order to stand, but she was calm, straightlipped and her eyes were dry.

Read The Bible With Us Daily

But when Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, heard of all the evil that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had done.

Then they took all the men, and went to fight with Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and found him by the great waters that are in Gibeon.

Now it came to pass, that when all the people which were with Ishmael saw Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, then they were glad.

So all the people that Ishmael had carried away captive from Mizpah cast about and returned, and went unto Johanan the son of Kareah.

But Ishmael the son of Nethaniah escaped from Johanan with eight men, and went to the Ammonites.

Then took Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, all the remnant of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, from Mizpah, after that he had slain Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, even mighty men of war, and the women, and the children, and the eunuchs, whom he had brought again from Gibeon:

And they departed, and dwelt in the habitation of Chimham, which is by Beth-lehem, to go to enter into Egypt.

Because of the Chaldeans: for they were afraid of them, because Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had slain Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon made governor in the land.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LEADERSHIP

ALL history is woven fabric of leadership. Without it there would be no history worth the recording.

The tiny ants, the swarming bees, the herd in the field, the returning and departing birds of the air—all have their leader. It is essential. It is imperative. Otherwise everything in nature and the affairs of men would be mere chaos.

There is born within the soul of us all an urge—an urge to follow an inspiring leader, for, in the last analysis, we are all followers. Napoleon had as his ideals Alexander and Caesar. And every great leader has had in mind some greater leader, whose pupil he wished to be.

We are inspired by the examples of those who had ideals, who acted independently, and who thought beyond their particular day and time. It is this aspiring, upon the part of us all, that brings to us, as individuals, and to nations, all the accumulated strength and character which we and they enjoy.

The impotrant fact, however, is for each of us, early in life, to realize that we have imbedded in ourselves the latent qualities of leadership in some measure or other. We must first lead ourselves!

Individual leadership brings about independence of thought and soundness of judgment. It knits character fibre and enables a man or woman to stand his or her ground in the midst of depression and discouragement—and see ahead.

Most of the important decisions in life must be made by ourselves, uninfluenced to any large degree by others. We must create a "format" of our own—and stick to it. Otherwise a wobbly mind and character. We must pursue a plan of life—a program of our own making. To exist is not to live. Every day must become a glorious adventure into the realm of the mind and into the vast undiscovered realm of life and nature.

I can think of no better plan, however, for becoming a great leader than to faithfully and loyally follow other leaders, not as a means for undoing that leadership, but to become superior to it!

STYLED FOR THE LARGER FIGURE

Complete, Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart Included

PATTERN 9623

You are not the "forgotten woman" just because your figure is no longer slender! Make frocks that are modish, youthful and slenderizing—make them fit well and the coveted silhouette will appear. Aren't you charmed with this stunning afternoon model? The clever seaming and deep V yoke will carry the eye downward, the semi-belted waistline is good and capes, this time added over long slim sleeves, are mighty flattering. Faille, satin or a mossy crepe would be ideal, and lace adds a dainty lingerie touch.

Pattern 9623 may be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards 39 inch fabric and ½ yard 18 inch lace.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

The Winter Edition of the Marian Martin Pattern Book shows all the new style highlights. This book will guide you to a distinctive wardrobe at little cost. Send for it today. Price of Pattern Book fifteen cents, book and pattern togeiher, twenty-five cents.

Send your order to The Gettysburg Times Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

About New York

New York—Items plucked on a November morn:

There is a New York street that has but a single "house number." It is Rockefeller plaza, a single block long. The only structure thereon is the 75-story main skyscraper of Rockefeller center, flaunting the legend on the entrance: "30 Rockefeller plaza."

Where there is no No. 1 or, for that matter, no other number, the newspaper fraternity is worried because they call it No. 30. Because, behind the banks of typesetting machines and among telegraph operators the signal "30" is known as —that's all there is, there isn't any more.

Social Drinking

With repeal, you might expect that the swanky parties would feature bars. Right you are, and right they do. But, they arent's whisky and gin and so forth bars. They peddle only milk.

It seems, what with the Mae West influence and other such beauty aides inspired by the bustle ladies of the mauve decade, the piquant debutantes of the hour are intent on gathering hips about themselves. So they hie their pretty selves to the milk bars, a prime requisite to every dimpled darling who wishes a whisp of fashionable fat.

They sometimes refer to him as Manhattan's "easy judge"—Magistrate William C. Dodge, who has just been elected district attorney.

I discovered why on a visit to Jefferson Market court, where he was presiding the other day. A group of street peddlers were upon charges of "obstructing traffic."

Magistrate Dodge suspended sentence with this comment: "They cannot get a job in these times and they refuse to ask for the poor relief. They are trying to earn an honest living in the only way that is open to them."

But those who remembered his prosecutions when he was assistant district attorney will attest he is anything but "easy" when he faces gangsters and racketeers.

This Mad Island

That row of ultra-expensive beauty salons on upper Fifth avenue looks exactly like a display of gaudy candy boxes.

Judging by his "self-portrait," George Gershwin wears a top hat and frocked coat when painting.

Colette D'Arville's favorite color is black.

Jose Iturbi, pianist, spends his vacations on his orange grove in Spain.

Communist organizations own half a dozen book shops around Union Square. They sell nothing except volumes extolling the soviet idea.

W. C. Fields began his career as a juggler.

Percy Hammond is a Cadiz, Ohio stripling of 1873.

Charles Laughton won a gold medal on his first appearance on the stage.

Hunting season must be near, what with nimrods practicing their markmanship on the rodents on the rubbish heaps in those low Jersey meadows.

New York—You may go to a certain New York theatre and see Herr Kurt Jooss and his ballet do things. You think you know about the ballet. But you don't. This is the ballet:

Like oaks which grow from acorns small and deficits from buildings tall, a ballet grows from little jumps and twists and turns, and sometimes thumps.

One, two, three—jump; one, two, three—jump; turn, twist, jump, thump.

And if at first you don't succeed, the pianist you'll never need to caution; he'll begin again, and you'll do one-two-three, and then you'll jump and if you're good the chap will catch you as he should.

One - two - three - four-five and twist. Tum-te-tum, and then he missed.

Dying Girl

The girl will die without a sigh because this is a ballet. Without a sigh, the girl will die, and young Herr Jooss who runs these shows won't care for it, and then she'll die all over again, and still he won't like and still she'll die until she's so cockeyed tired she'll die naturally.

The stage is dirty, bare and cold, and yet the dancers worry. They say the air is much too old, and find it hard to hurry.

One, two, three—jump. One, two, three—thump.

Look at the girl in the bathing suit who flies through the air like a swallow, and lands on her feet and balances there, and look at these others who follow—and land every which way and sit on the floor and set the old scrub-women off in a roar.

This darn thing'll never be a ballet. This is only a means of getting hungry quick. But still the critics say it's a ballet at night.

They talk about "subtle irony" and about a "fusion of techniques" and about combining the art of the dance with the art of the theater. Perhaps they're right.

One, two, three—thump!

Concerning A Table

Incidentally, this Jooss ballet is something quite new. It doesn't deal with the love tangles of Harlequins and Columines, or the afternoons of fauns. Its most popular skit concerns the diplomats, and undertakes to show how war is bred by graybeards talking across green tables and how, when the carnage is finished, there remain the graybeards, still talking across green tables, still breeding war.

As might be surmised, the name of this offering is "The Green Table."

Greenwich Village artists were refused permission to hold an outdoor exhibition in Washington Square this fall. A kindly patron who owned a nearby night club offered them space to show their work.

Jack Kirkland, erstwhile husband of Nancy Carroll, has dramatized Erskine Caldwell's novel, "Tobacco Road."

Eva Le Gallienne thinks she'll play L'Aiglon next season.

Inherits Vast Wealth

With no furore or comment—not even a party—Doris Duke, only daughter of the late James B. Duke, tobacco magnate, inherited the $53,000,000 tobacco fortune on her twenty-first birthday. (Associated Press Photo)

THE CYNIC AND THE DOLL

"Ah," the scoffing cynic said,
"You thought your doll a lovely thing.
You took it in your arms to bed
And fancied it worth cherishing.
But now it's broken, child, and you
Shed tears above it in despair.
This is a foolish thing you do.
There's merely wax and sawdust there."

Said one unto the weeping child
Who knew the truth as well as he:
"Come, little one, be reconciled!
Perhaps your doll can mended be.
Forget the sawdust you have seen.
Forget this grim and dreadful truth.
Such tragedies as this have been
An everlasting part of youth.

"So keep your love of dolls, my dear,
And cherish them the while you may.
You'll find with every passing year
That many a joy must go away.
Cling fast to beauty though it fades
And press your playthings to your heart.
When reason cold your mind invades
Then much that's tender must depart.

"So treasure wax and sawdust things
Which warm the soul and glad the eye.
Heed not the cynic's mutterings
Who coldly reasons how and why.
'Tis well to love the good and true,
But keep your dreams and fancies here
And never grow so wise that you
Are left with naught to do but sneer."

BIRD FLIES 9,000 MILES

Washington (AP)—The longest flight on record for any bird is that of a three-month old Arctic tern. It was banded on the coast of Labrador by a scientiest and found on the east coast of South Africa. The shortest distance between the two points was 8,000 miles, and the biological survey estimates the flight actually was at least 9,000.

Following legalization of betting on horse races in Texas, race tracks are being built in San Antonio and Houston.

NOTICE OF FARM ALLOTMENTS AND OF MAXIMUM ACREAGES OF WHEAT FOR 1934 UNDER CONTRACTS FOR MEMBERS OF THE WHEAT PRODUCTION CONTROL ASSOCIATION OF ADAMS COUNTY, STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Listed below are statements of the allotments which have been determined for members of the Adams County Wheat Production Control Association from Littlestown, Gettysburg, Biglerville, Fairfield, York Springs, New Oxford. These allotments are to hold for the duration of the present wheat contracts, and they are the basis upon which adjustment payments are to be made. They have been determined by the County Allotment Committee after careful consideration of the application statements. Every effort has been made to have these allotments as accurate as possible. The maximum acreage which may be sown to wheat for the 1934 crop on each farm, under the reduction requirements of the contract, is also listed.

The Adams County allotment, which has been calculated from records of the United States Department of Agriculture, is 341,385 bushels. This is the total number of bushels allotted to the county under the wheat plan.

Signed H. F. SNYDER,
Chairman County Allotment Committee.

CAPITAL Ins and Outs

By Herbert Plummer

Washington—One of the first bombs to explode in the approaching session of congress will be, perhaps, when young Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, sends up his budget for the fiscal year of 1935.

The familiar old cry of a balanced budget doubtless will be heard from the republicans. It was raised against the present administration at the close of the special session.

Rep. Bertrand Snell, the republican leader in the house, carged the democrats with keeping two sets of books.

"One set," said Snell, "is known as the 'ordinary budget.' The other set is known as the 'extraordinary budget.' The ordinary budget consists purely of operating expenses. The extraordinary budget consists of major expenditures labeled 'emergency.'"

Snell was the target of democratic big guns for his statement. Postmaster General Farley, described it as "a ruthless and reckless exhibition of petty partisan politics." Byrns, democratic leader of the house, said that apparently Snell "disapproved of the recovery activities."

Different In January

It was hinted that some of Snell's own colleagues thought his statement a bit untimely. However, it must be remembered that way back in June when it was the general policy of everybody to give the administration a fair chance with its recovery program.

The situation likely will be different January 3.

While the democrats freely admit the budget now is not what Director Douglas perhaps expected it to be when he took over the job last February, they see no reason for alarm.

They contend there is no reason to charge the president has violated his party's platform "of a federal budget annually balanced" or to accuse Douglas of not performing the job assigned to him.

The onrush of unprecedented events, they say, made a change in basic policy necessary, and that the president saw such a change inevitably had to be made.

Looking To 1935

The democrats contend further that if the various recovery agencies live within the funds allotted them by congress, it is possible to balance the 1935 budget.

Republican critics scoff at this claim. They point to what they see as possible avenues for increased expenditures of federal funds by relaing money for such agencies as pubcovery agencies. Also, they say congress' attitude toward appropriatlic works, for example, can't be overlooked.

All in all, it looks fairly certain the liveliest debates in the coming sesion will center around the status of the federal budget.

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHER ARRESTED IN BOND PROBE

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 25 (AP)—Miss Cora Steele, teacher of a sixth grade class in a public school here, was arrested Friday in connection with the disappearance of $25,000 in bonds belonging to the state teachers' retirement fund.

Miss Steele was placed under bond of $100,000 and was taken to Indianapolis by Al G. Feency, state safety director.

Miss Steele served four years on the board which has charge of the retirement fund. She was formerly a member of the executive committee of the state teachers' association. The disappearance of the bonds from a safety deposit box of a local bank was made public in October.

CAMILLE'S FLAT BRINGS PRICE

Paris (AP)—The apartment on the Boulevard de la Madeleine for which Alphonsine Plessis, immortalized by the younger Dumas as "Camille," paid $640 rent in 1847, has just been leased at $2,650 a year.

FINNS GET OREGON FISH EGGS

Helinsfors (AP)—A shipment of 108,000 Chinook salmon eggs, donated by Oregon's fish commission to Finland, has arrived here in good condition. The egg gift was a tribute to the work of Finnish emigrants in bettering Oregon fisheries.

New British National Party Result of Cabinent Setbacks

By OSCAR LEIDING

London (AP)—Dominating the British political picture, as the session of parliament develops, is the question whether the national government is planning to weld itself into a new party.

Many in political circles foresee the formation of a national party which would swallow up the conservative party and the liberal and laborite supporters of the MacDonald cabinet.

This step, some say, is the only logical way for the "temporary" coalition of 1931 to insure itself a more lasting life in the face of its tremendous power but growing unpopularity.

Critics Cite Defeats

Swept into office in 1931 by the greatest majority in the nation's history, the national government has had no opposition and critics of its two-year regime argue that this lack is reflected in its conspicuous failure to give an aggressive leadership to the nation.

These critics assert that public opinion is rising against the government and as evidence cite its resounding defeat in East Fauham, a London borough, in a by-election to fill a vacancy in the house of commons, besides the decided laborite gains in the municipal elections.

It is up to the national government, some political observers say, to do something to recapture its waning popularity and the formation of a national party may be the answer.

To others, the fusion of cabinet interests into one organization is seen as the form of mild dictatorship Great Britain would accept, as well as the form which would prevent any more vigorous type from coming into power.

Announcement of such a plan was looked for on the eve of the last session of the old parliament when Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister; Stanley Baldwin and Sir John Simon, king pins of the present coalition, spoke at a nationalist luncheon.

But the "big three" avoided any such proclamation.

What was said, for the first time officially, was that the coalition formed two years ago plans to go through the next general election in its present form "and retain the power," as MacDonald put it, "of the national government for the next period of office."

"A national government requires a national propaganda," he added.

A continued burial of party strife was asked by the three leaders.

"The condition of the world now," said MacDonald, life-long laborite until he consented to head the coalition, "means that any attempt to return to party government—which is bound very soon to become partisan government—is not only a mistake, it is a crime."

"We are sticking together to see this job through," said Baldwin, oc-servative leader and former prime minister. "It will be a long time before there is an election and there is a great deal to be done."

"There is a transformation taking place in the British mind on the subject of party politics," said Sir John Simon, foreign secretary and liberal national leader. "The old controversies that divided parties are dead."

Some political observers, reading between the lines of those statements, were convinced that plans are on foot to raise a national party banner.

Others, however, point out that the make-up of the conservative party would never permit it to bury its identity of a party of the moderate right. The tory "die-hards," they say always will cling to the old ideals of the conservative party and the present coalition, with its laborite and liberal wings, could hardly be led to fusion in the face of such opposition.

ABLE-BODIED DERVISHES LOSE EGYPTIAN SUBSIDY

Alexandria (AP)—The economic crisis has struck Egypt's whirling dervishes.

The ministry of religious control has decided that the dervishes, all able-bodied men, no longer bring in enough revenue to justify their maintenance at government expense.

Their age-old stronghold, the Tekya monastery, will be turned into a school.

The efficiency of Michigan's football scouting may be partly explained by the fact that, from year to year, the same members of the coaching staff scout the same teams among the Wolves' regular foes.

Ins and Outs

By Herbert Plummer

Washington—One of the first bombs to explode in the approaching session of congress will be, perhaps, when young Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, sends up his budget for the fiscal year of 1935.

The familiar old cry of a balanced budget doubtless will be heard from the republicans. It was raised against the present administration at the close of the special session.

Rep. Bertrand Snell, the republican leader in the house, carged the democrats with keeping two sets of books.

"One set," said Snell, "is known as the 'ordinary budget.' The other set is known as the 'extraordinary budget.' The ordinary budget consists purely of operating expenses. The extraordinary budget consists of major expenditures labeled 'emergency.'"

Snell was the target of democratic big guns for his statement. Postmaster General Farley, described it as "a ruthless and reckless exhibition of petty partisan politics." Byrns, democratic leader of the house, said that apparently Snell "disapproved of the recovery activities."

Different In January

It was hinted that some of Snell's own colleagues thought his statement a bit untimely. However, it must be remembered that way back in June when it was the general policy of everybody to give the administration a fair chance with its recovery program.

The situation likely will be different January 3.

While the democrats freely admit the budget now is not what Director Douglas perhaps expected it to be when he took over the job last February, they see no reason for alarm.

They contend there is no reason to charge the president has violated his party's platform "of a federal budget annually balanced" or to accuse Douglas of not performing the job assigned to him.

The onrush of unprecedented events, they say, made a change in basic policy necessary, and that the president saw such a change inevitably had to be made.

Looking To 1935

The democrats contend further that if the various recovery agencies live within the funds allotted them by congress, it is possible to balance the 1935 budget.

Republican critics scoff at this claim. They point to what they see as possible avenues for increased expenditures of federal funds by reing money for such agencies as pubcovery agencies. Also, they say congress' attitude toward appropriatlic works, for example, can't be overlooked.

All in all, it looks fairly certain the liveliest debates in the coming sesion will center around the status of the federal budget.

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHER ARRESTED IN BOND PROBE

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 25 (AP)—Miss Cora Steele, teacher of a sixth grade class in a public school here, was arrested Friday in connection with the disappearance of $25,000 in bonds belonging to the state teachers' retirement fund.

Miss Steele was placed under bond of $100,000 and was taken to Indianapolis by Al G. Feeney, state safety director.

Miss Steele served four years on the board which has charge of the retirement fund. She was formerly a member of the executive committee of the state teachers' association. The disappearance of the bonds from a safety deposit box of a local bank was made public in October.

New British National Party Result of Cabinent Setbacks

By OSCAR LEIDING

London (AP)—Dominating the British political picture, as the session of parliament develops, is the question whether the national government is planning to weld itself into a new party.

Many in political circles foresee the formation of a national party which would swallow up the conservative party and the liberal and laborite supporters of the MacDonald cabinet.

This step, some say, is the only logical way for the "temporary" coalition of 1931 to insure itself a more lasting life in the face of its tremendous power but growing unpopularity.

Critics Cite Defeats

Swept into office in 1931 by the greatest majority in the nation's history, the national government has had no opposition and critics of its two-year regime argue that this lack is reflected in its conspicuous failure to give an aggressive leadership to the nation.

These critics assert that public opinion is rising against the government and as evidence cite its resounding defeat in East Fauham, a London borough, in a by-election to fill a vacancy in the house of commons, besides the decided laborite gains in the municipal elections.

It is up to the national government, some political observers say, to do something to recapture its waning popularity and the formation of a national party may be the answer.

To others, the fusion of cabinet interests into one organization is seen as the form of mild dictatorship Great Britain would accept, as well as the form which would prevent any more vigorous type from coming into power.

Announcement of such a plan was looked for on the eve of the last session of the old parliament when Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister; Stanley Baldwin and Sir John Simon, king pins of the present coalition, spoke at a nationalist luncheon.

But the "big three" avoided any such proclamation.

What was said, for the first time officially, was that the coalition formed two years ago plans to go through the next general election in its present form "and retain the power," as MacDonald put it, "of the national government for the next period of office."

"A national government requires a national propaganda," he added.

A continued burial of party strife was asked by the three leaders.

"The condition of the world now," said MacDonald, life-long laborite until he consented to head the coalition, "means that any attempt to return to party government—which is bound very soon to become partisan government—is not only a mistake, it is a crime."

"We are sticking together to see this job through," said Baldwin, oc-servative leader and former prime minister. "It will be a long time before there is an election and there is a great deal to be done."

"There is a transformation taking place in the British mind on the subject of party politics," said Sir John Simon, foreign secretary and liberal national leader. "The old controversies that divided parties are dead."

Some political observers, reading between the lines of those statements, were convinced that plans are on foot to raise a national party banner.

Others, however, point out that the make-up of the conservative party would never permit it to bury its identity of a party of the moderate right. The tory "die-hards," they say always will cling to the old ideals of the conservative party and the present coalition, with its laborite and liberal wings, could hardly be led to fusion in the face of such opposition.

ABLE-BODIED DERVISHES LOSE EGYPTIAN SUBSIDY

Alexandria (AP)—The economic crisis has struck Egypt's whirling dervishes.

The ministry of religious control has decided that the dervishes, all able-bodied men, no longer bring in enough revenue to justify their maintenance at government expense.

Their age-old stronghold, the Tekya monastery, will be turned into a school.

The efficiency of Michigan's football scouting may be partly explained by the fact that, from year to year, the same members of the coaching staff scout the same teams among the Wolves' regular foes.

Read The Bible With Us Daily

But when Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, heard of all the evil that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had done.

Then they took all the men, and went to fight with Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and found him by the great waters that are in Gibeon.

Now it came to pass, that when all the people which were with Ishmael saw Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, then they were glad.

So all the people that Ishmael had carried away captive from Mizpah cast about and returned, and went unto Johanan the son of Kareah.

But Ishmael the son of Nethaniah escaped from Johanan with eight men, and went to the Ammonites.

Then took Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, all the remnant of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, from Mizpah, after that he had slain Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, even mighty men of war, and the women, and the children, and the eunuchs, whom he had brought again from Gibeon:

And they departed, and dwelt in the habitation of Chimham, which is by Beth-lehem, to go to enter into Egypt.

Because of the Chaldeans: for they were afraid of them, because Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had slain Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon made governor in the land.

Jeremiah 41:11-18.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LEADERSHIP

ALL history is woven fabric of leadership. Without it there would be no history worth the recording.

The tiny ants, the swarming bees, the herd in the field, the returning and departing birds of the air—all have their leader. It is essential. It is imperative. Otherwise everything in nature and the affairs of men would be mere chaos.

There is born within the soul of us all an urge—an urge to follow an inspiring leader, for, in the last analysis, we are all followers. Napoleon had as his ideals Alexander and Caesar. And every great leader has had in mind some greater leader, whose pupil he wished to be.

We are inspired by the examples of those who had ideals, who acted independently, and who thought beyond their particular day and time. It is this aspiring, upon the part of us all, that brings to us, as individuals, and to nations, all the accumulated strength and character which we and they enjoy.

The impotrant fact, however, is for each of us, early in life, to realize that we have imbedded in ourselves the latent qualities of leadership in some measure or other. We must first lead ourselves!

Individual leadership brings about independence of thought and soundness of judgment. It knits character fibre and enables a man or woman to stand his or her ground in the midst of depression and discouragement—and see ahead.

Most of the important decisions in life must be made by ourselves, uninfluenced to any large degree by others. We must create a "format" of our own—and stick to it. Otherwise a wobbly mind and character. We must pursue a plan of life—a program of our own making. To exist is not to live. Every day must become a glorious adventure into the realm of the mind and into the vast undiscovered realm of life and nature.

I can think of no better plan, however, for becoming a great leader than to faithfully and loyally follow other leaders, not as a means for undoing that leadership, but to become superior to it!

About New York

New York—Items plucked on a November morn:

There is a New York street that has but a single "house number." It is Rockefeller plaza, a single block long. The only structure thereon is the 75-story main skyscraper of Rockefeller center, flaunting the legend on the entrance: "30 Rockefeller plaza."

Where there is no No. 1 or, for that matter, no other number, the newspaper fraternity is worried because they call it No. 30. Because, behind the banks of typesetting machines and among telegraph operators the signal "30" is known as —that's all there is, there isn't any more.

Social Drinking

With repeal, you might expect that the swanky parties would feature bars. Right you are, and right they do. But, they arent's whisky and gin and so forth bars. They peddle only milk.

It seems, what with the Mae West influence and other such beauty aides inspired by the bustle ladies of the mauve decade, the piquant debutantes of the hour are intent on gathering hips about themselves. So they hie their pretty selves to the milk bars, a prime requisite to every dimpled darling who wishes a whisp of fashionable fat.

They sometimes refer to him as Manhattan's "easy judge"—Magistrate William C. Dodge, who has just been elected district attorney.

I discovered why on a visit to Jefferson Market court, where he was presiding the other day. A group of street peddlers were upon charges of "obstructing traffic."

Magistrate Dodge suspended sentence with this comment: "They cannot get a job in these times and they refuse to ask for the poor relief. They are trying to earn an honest living in the only way that is open to them."

But those who remembered his prosecutions when he was assistant district attorney will attest he is anything but "easy" when he faces gangsters and racketeers.

This Mad Island

That row of ultra-expensive beauty salons on upper Fifth avenue looks exactly like a display of gaudy candy boxes.

Judging by his "self-portrait," George Gershwin wears a top hat and frocked coat when painting.

Colette D'Arville's favorite color is black.

Jose Iturbi, pianist, spends his vacations on his orange grove in Spain.

Communist organizations own half a dozen book shops around Union Square. They sell nothing except volumes extolling the soviet idea.

W. C. Fields began his career as a juggler.

Percy Hammond is a Cadiz, Ohio stripling of 1873.

Charles Laughton won a gold medal on his first appearance on the stage.

Hunting season must be near, what with nimrods practicing their markmanship on the rodents on the rubbish heaps in those low Jersey meadows.

New York—You may go to a certain New York theatre and see Herr Kurt Jooss and his ballet do things. You think you know about the ballet. But you don't. This is the ballet:

Like oaks which grow from acorns small and deficits from buildings tall, a ballet grows from little jumps and twists and turns, and sometimes thumps.

One, two, three—jump; one, two, three—jump; turn, twist, jump, thump.

And if at first you don't succeed, the pianist you'll never need to caution; he'll begin again, and you'll do one-two-three, and then you'll jump and if you're good the chap will catch you as he should.

One - two - three - four-five and twist. Tum-te-tum, and then he missed.

Dying Girl

The girl will die without a sigh because this is a ballet. Without a sigh, the girl will die, and young Herr Jooss who runs these shows won't care for it, and then she'll die all over again, and still he won't like and still she'll die until she's so cockeyed tired she'll die naturally.

The stage is dirty, bare and cold, and yet the dancers worry. They say the air is much too old, and find it hard to hurry.

One, two, three—jump. One, two, three—thump.

Look at the girl in the bathing suit who flies through the air like a swallow, and lands on her feet and balances there, and look at these others who follow—and land every which way and sit on the floor and set the old scrub-women off in a roar.

This darn thing'll never be a ballet. This is only a means of getting hungry quick. But still the critics say it's a ballet at night.

They talk about "subtle irony" and about a "fusion of techniques" and about combining the art of the dance with the art of the theater. Perhaps they're right.

One, two, three—thump!

Concerning A Table

Incidentally, this Jooss ballet is something quite new. It doesn't deal with the love tangles of Harlequins and Columines, or the afternoons of fauns. Its most popular skit concerns the diplomats, and undertakes to show how war is bred by graybeards talking across green tables and how, when the carnage is finished, there remain the graybeards, still talking across green tables, still breeding war.

As might be surmised, the name of this offering is "The Green Table."

Greenwich Village artists were refused permission to hold an outdoor exhibition in Washington Square this fall. A kindly patron who owned a nearby night club offered them space to show their work.

Jack Kirkland, erstwhile husband of Nancy Carroll, has dramatized Erskine Caldwell's novel, "Tobacco Road."

Eva Le Gallienne thinks she'll play L'Aiglon next season.

Inherits Vast Wealth

With no furore or comment—not even a party—Doris Duke, only daughter of the late James B. Duke, tobacco magnate, inherited the $53,000,000 tobacco fortune on her twenty-first birthday. (Associated Press Photo)

THE CYNIC AND THE DOLL

"Ah," the scoffing cynic said,
"You thought your doll a lovely thing.
You took it in your arms to bed
And fancied it worth cherishing.
But now it's broken, child, and you
Shed tears above it in despair.
This is a foolish thing you do.
There's merely wax and sawdust there."

Said one unto the weeping child
Who knew the truth as well as he:
"Come, little one, be reconciled!
Perhaps your doll can mended be.
Forget the sawdust you have seen.
Forget this grim and dreadful truth.
Such tragedies as this have been
An everlasting part of youth.

"So keep your love of dolls, my dear,
And cherish them the while you may.
You'll find with every passing year
That many a joy must go away.
Cling fast to beauty though it fades
And press your playthings to your heart.
When reason cold your mind invades
Then much that's tender must depart.

"So treasure wax and sawdust things
Which warm the soul and glad the eye.
Heed not the cynic's mutterings
Who coldly reasons how and why.
'Tis well to love the good and true,
But keep your dreams and fancies here
And never grow so wise that you
Are left with naught to do but sneer."

BIRD FLIES 9,000 MILES

Washington (AP)—The longest flight on record for any bird is that of a three-month old Arctic tern. It was banded on the coast of Labrador by a scientist and found on the east coast of South Africa. The shortest distance between the two points was 8,000 miles, and the biological survey estimates the flight actually was at least 9,000.

Following legalization of betting on horse races in Texas, race tracks are being built in San Antonio and Houston.

NOTICE OF FARM ALLOTMENTS AND OF MAXIMUM ACREAGES OF WHEAT FOR 1934 UNDER CONTRACTS FOR MEMBERS OF THE WHEAT PRODUCTION CONTROL ASSOCIATION OF ADAMS COUNTY, STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Listed below are statements of the allotments which have been determined for members of the Adams County Wheat Production Control Association from Littlestown, Gettysburg, Biglerville, Fairfield, York Springs, New Oxford. These allotments are to hold for the duration of the present wheat contracts, and they are the basis upon which adjustment payments are to be made. They have been determined by the County Allotment Committee after careful consideration of the application statements. Every effort has been made to have these allotments as accurate as possible. The maximum acreage which may be sown to wheat for the 1934 crop on each farm, under the reduction requirements of the contract, is also listed.

The Adams County allotment, which has been calculated from records of the United States Department of Agriculture, is 341,385 bushels. This is the total number of bushels allotted to the county under the wheat plan.

Signed H. F. SNYDER,
Chairman County Allotment Committee.

NOTHING COULD HAPPEN TO YOUR DAUGHTER!
SHE'S THE MOST LOVABLE, SWEET GIRL IN TOWN!

BUT — — —

How will she know what to do when she meets her first romantic emotional crisis? Have you told her everything? Or have you taken it for granted that life is an open book to modern youth? You owe it to yourself and your children to see this starkly beautiful, heart-breaking drama of young love trapped in the web of its own ignorance. Told with rare delicacy, startling beauty and a depth of understanding—unparalleled in any picture in recent years. It is one of the outstanding dramatic sensations of the season!

CHINA-SAVING HINT

If you are fearful lest your guests break your delicate but rather slipper cups and saucers at the tea party, pour a drop or so of hot water into the saucers and then the cup will tend to cling to its saucer and not slide when being passed around.

HARD-WORKING HEN

Williamstown, Ky. (AP)—A seven-year-old hen that had laid 1,291 eggs attracted unusual attention at the annual poultry field day held on the farm of A. Threlkeld, near here. She produced about 185 eggs a year, and they averaged 25 ounces to the dozen.

DROP SHOWN IN STATE OUTPUT

Total Shows Effect Of Reduced Operation; Lower Prices.

Pennsylvania's industrial production last year had a value of $3,117,806,500, according to a summary made public today by Secretary of Internal Affairs Philip H. Dewey following a survey of all of the counties made by the statistical bureau in the department. The valuation last year was approximately one-third less than the value of products in 1931 when the total reached $4,682,647,300.

Decreased demand, resulting in unemployment, and changed selling prices accounted for the big drop in the state's total.

Records in the department show that industrial palrolls in Pennsylvania in 1932 carried 1,059,750 names while in 1931 industrial employes totaled $1,238,480. However, thousands of persons listed as employes in industry worked only part time in both years.

Payrolls

Of the total number of industrial workers last year, 929,022 were wage earners and 130,728 were salaried employes. During 1931 there were 1,083,113 persons listed as wage workers while salaried employes totaled 155,367. Wage workers in 1932 were paid $755,085,300 as compared with a wage payroll of $1,129,396,400 in 1931. There were 718,131 male wage workers and 210,891 female wage workers employed last year and the males were paid $654,278,700, while the females received $100,807,000.

In 1931 Pennsylvania industries employed 858,375 male and 224,738 female wage workers. The males in that year received $994,382,900 while the females were paid $135,013,500.

In 1932 salaried workers in Pennsylvania were paid $277,226,600. In 1931 they received $375,103,800.

Wages and salaries combined in 1932 amounted to $1,032,312,300 as compared with a total industrial payroll in 1931 of $1,504,500,200. The summary of state industry as made public by Secretary Dewey disclosed that in 1932 there were 18,277 industrial plants in the commonwealth while in the preceding year, 19,393 filed reports with the department of internal affairs. During last year the various establishments were operated by 8,747 corporations, 2,441 partnerships and 7,089 individuals. In 1931 the plants were operated by 9,080 corporations, 2647 partnerships and 7,666 individuals,.

Capital Values

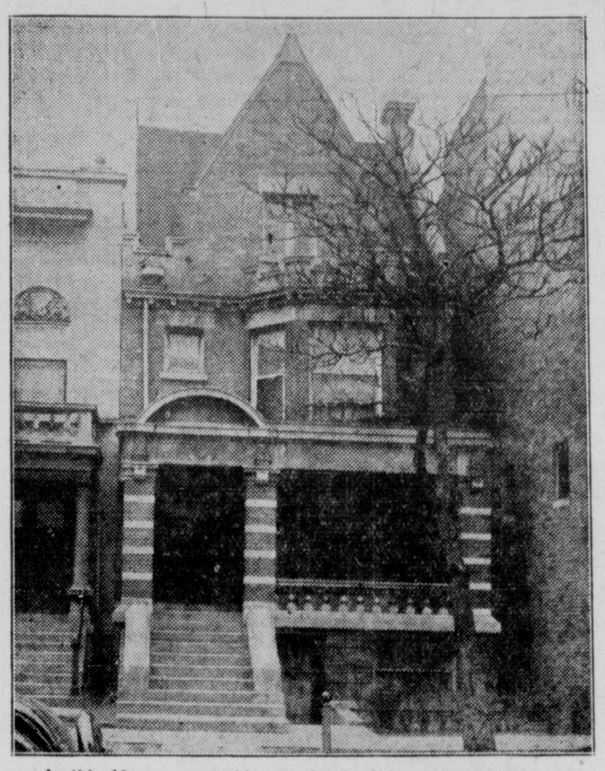

Notwithstanding the heavy losses suffered in industry last year and the decrease in the number of plants, there was comparatively little change in the amount of invested capital, the report indicating that invested capital in 1932 amounted to $5,022,191,100 while in 1931 capital reached $5,388,771,700.

Philadelphia continued to hold its lead among the other counties of Pennsylvania last year with a total production valuation of $877,187,800. Allegheny county likewise held to second place with a value of $426,796,500. Luzerne county was in third position with production worth $146,300,400 and ranking fourth was Delaware county with an output of $138,481,800. Berks, with a valuation of $94,646,900, was in fifth place, closely followed by Montgomery where industrial products were valued at $93,191,300.

DUCE'S KIN GETS MAYORALTY

Rome (AP)—Vito Mussolini, 22-year-old nephew of the duce, has been appointed mayor of Mercato Saraceno, a town of 10,000 inhabitants near Forli, where the premier was born. Vito's father was Araldo, editor of Mussolini's newspaper until his death last year.

ESTABLISH NEW PA. GAME FARM

Newest Game Farm Consists Of 220 Acres; Experimental Work Scheduled.

In an effort to increase the ringneck pheasant output and carry on advanced experimentation in the propagation of cottontail rabbits another state game farm has been established in Lycoming county, Ernest R. Harwood, executive secretary of the game commission, today announced.

The area, which consists of approximately 220 acres, is along the west side of the picturesque Loyalsock creek about four miles east of Montoursville. The tract is considered ideally suited to small game propagation. Wire enclosures will be erected and buildings eremodeled. About 10,000 ringneck pheasants will be cared for next spring.

During the first year the area will be used almost entirely for rearing purposes. All incubation will be done at the Fisher game farm in Montgomery county, day-old pheasant chicks being transpoted to the Lycoming county farm. After they have reached the proper age, they will be dsitributed in the north central counties for restocking.

Earl F. Greenwood, Williamsport, has been named as superintendent of the new farm.

SALUTE LIST ENDS NAZI FLAG PUZZLE

Berlin (AP)—Foreigners aren't the only ones having difficulties about saluting the innumerable banners of new Germany.

Even the storm troops have to be told which flags to greet.

Instructions just issued list the following: Battalion and field emblems of the uniformed nazis, flags of the steelhelmet and of the police, and all flags of the pre-war army.

Also flags of the various Hitlerite political and youth organizations.

Storm troops signal flags or nazi juvenile banners need not be saluted.

RUSSIAN TRAVEL BONUS OFFERED SWEDISH REDS

Stockholm (AP)—The governing council of Norrbo, a community in northern Sweden, has decided to help communist sympathizers visit the country whose praises they sing.

A bonus of 200 Swedish kromor (about $40) will be paid each communist sympathizer who will agree to go to Russia and stay there at least two years.

Yours truly

ALL the world despises an anonymous letter—and its writer. We have no respect for, or confidence in the man who side-steps responsibility by refusing to sign his name to what he writes.

But did you ever think that unknown merchandise is anonymous? Nobody to vouch for it. No name signed.

Notice the advertisements in this paper. There in bold print are the names of these who stake their reputations—who stake your good-will towards them—on the truth of what they have put in type.

The maker of advertised goods realizes that he might fool you once—but never the second time. He knows his success is dependent upon your continued confidence in what he says in the advertisements.

Read the advertisements with confidence. They tell truths that you should now.
